Top Jet Ace Says Pilots Do Not Have New 'Gimmick'

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 22 (AP) — Allied troops, advancing behind a curtain of tank fire, today recaptured an eastern front hill after 15 hours of continuous fighting.

The UN troops had lost the peak, northeast of the punchbowl, to a North Korean battalion in a pre-dawn battle that marked a shift of Red pressure from the western front to the east.

U. S. saber jets tangled twice with Communist MIGs-15s and the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported four of the Russian-built planes damaged. The sabres were flying protective cover for other planes attacking a locomotive works and rail tunnels.

The Air Force also said gun camera film showed a MIG listed as damaged yesterday was actually probably destroyed. That raised the Sunday bag to four MIGs destroyed, one probably destroyed and six damaged. Allied pilots have destroyed at least 51 MIGs in September.

New Jet Ace

Sunday's air battles also produced America's 20th jet ace, Capt. Robinson Risner, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Maj. Frederick C. Blesse, top jet ace in Korea with eight MIGs, says pilots set the new record because "we have run into MIGs almost every mission this month." He disclaimed knowledge of any new "gimmick" designed to improve the sabre's performance.

It was announced in Washington recently that a new device would soon be tried out on the Sabres in Korea, but Blesse told a news conference "I haven't used anything on my aircraft that I didn't have on my first mission."

A top air force spokesman said, however, that a "new gimmick" was in the theatre but he would not confirm or deny that it was actually being used.

Reds Fail Again

On the central front, ground fighting Chinese Reds failed in another attempt to capture a hotly contested knob on Finger Ridge. Two full companies of Chinese reeled back under a punishing allied artillery barrage.

Smaller probes and patrols flared all along the 155-mile battlefront. Old Baldy and Kelly Hill, blood-soaked friction spots on the western front, were uneasily quiet.

Battle-hardened veterans of the U. S. Second Infantry Division recaptured Old Baldy early Sunday. By nightfall the Americans reported only light harassing fire from the Reds.

When men of the Second Battalion of the 38th Infantry Regiment reached the crest of Old Baldy, a strategic peak west of Chorwon, they found alive five of their buddies who had played dead for 72 hours in a battered bunker.

Seven of the original 12 who took cover there had died or may have escaped. The five survivors spent three days without food or water.

Stevenson Says T-H Is 'Spiteful'

Democrat Calls for Law to Be Repealed; Asks Labor Department Be Broadened

Speaks to AFL

Governor Attacks Stand Taken by Ike About Compulsion

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson declared today that the Taft-Hartley labor law must be repealed because it is "spiteful" and he denied a claim by his Republican rival that he favors compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

The Democratic presidential candidate, in a speech prepared for the American Federation of Labor's national convention, urged a broadening of the labor department. And he pictured Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, as firing only "blank cartridges" at labor problems.

Eisenhower, addressing the convention last Wednesday, said he favored amending the Taft-Hartley law and was against repeal.

Calls for Repeal

Calling for repeal, Stevenson said:

"Because the required changes are major changes, because the present law is spiteful, and because it has become a symbol of dissension and bitterness, I urge, therefore, as I did on Labor Day, that the Taft-Hartley act be repealed."

Stevenson blasted Eisenhower's claims that he (Stevenson) has advocated compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. Eisenhower in his AFL speech had said, "the basic, irreconcilable difference" between Stevenson's position and his was that, "he and his party embrace compulsion. I reject compulsion."

"If he (Eisenhower) wrote what he said, he had not read what I said," Stevenson declared, and then leveled this accusation at the General:

"He says he is against compulsion. Yet he seems to support the present law which compels men to work under court injunction for 80 days under terms they have rejected. There can be no greater compulsion than this."

Says Much Not Voiced

Noting that Eisenhower had proposed only two specific changes in the Taft-Hartley act, Stevenson said:

"The tinkling sound of these little words was unfortunately smothered by the thundering silence of all that was left unsaid."

Stevenson, who is generally expected to receive the AFL's endorsement for the presidency, al-

Poll Is Reported On Nixon Status

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 22 (AP) — The Indianapolis Star said today it learned that top Republican leaders were being polled on Sen. Richard M. Nixon's status as vice presidential nominee.

The Star said national Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield had sent telegrams to state chairmen and national committeemen to determine their views.

The information came from Evansville, Ind., where top Indiana GOP leaders gathered to welcome Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today at a rear platform appearance on his midwestern campaign tour.

In St. Louis, a close associate of Summerfield told a reporter there has been no such poll taken and James Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said he had not heard of one.

Adlai Bite For Funds IsRevealed

Chicago, Sept. 22 (A.P.) — Newspapers today began inquiring into handling of campaign funds in behalf of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic presidential candidate.

The Chicago Daily News, under a headline saying "Adlai's Aides 'Put Bite' on 1,000 firms," said "Gov. Stevenson's aides kept a list of more than 1,000 business corporations and state suppliers who were solicited for campaign and expense funds."

The Chicago Tribune, under a heading "Stevenson Uses Fund Raised for Governor Race," said Sunday that "money raised in Illinois as a 'personal fund' for Gov. Stevenson in his bid for a second term as governor now is being used to pay for his campaign for the presidency, it was admitted last night."

Forsythe Quoted

The Tribune quoted W. Donald Forsythe, former downstate campaign manager for Stevenson when Stevenson was running for governor, but Forsythe could not be reached immediately for comment on the reports.

Stevenson was campaigning in New York and was not available immediately for comment.

The Tribune said:

"In thus using the case—much of it raised through pressure on state employes—Stevenson has diverged from his announced intention to turn it over to the state Democratic central committee."

Used for Present Campaign

The Cincinnati Enquirer today, in a special story from Chicago, reported that a "personal fund" raised by Illinois state employes to back Stevenson's governor race was used for his presidential campaign.

The Cincinnati Enquirer also quoted Forsyth, a Springfield insurance man. Forsyth is now campaign manager for Lt. Gov. Sherwood E. Dixon, Stevenson's successor as candidate for governor.

General Has Phone Talk With Nixon on Finances

Eisenhower Will Give Another Major Address in Cincinnati With Taft Present — Will Speak on Foreign Policy

Aboard Eisenhower Train, Sept. 22 (AP)—The pendulum appeared swinging toward Sen. Richard M. Nixon today after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower talked to his vice presidential running-mate by telephone last night.

The Republican presidential nominee, off for a whistle-stop tour across southern Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and into Cincinnati, Ohio, tonight, called Nixon in Portland, Ore., about midnight from St. Louis.

While the results of their conversation were kept secret by Eisenhower's aides, there were some indications that the general may decide to ride out the political furor caused by Nixon's acceptance of an expense fund beyond his Senate salary and allowances.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James Hagerty, announced completion of the telephone call put in by Eisenhower, the first direct communication between the two Republican candidates since the presidential nominee was advised last Friday of the disclosures concerning the expense fund.

Declines Answers

Beyond saying that the two men had talked for 15 minutes, Hagerty declined to answer any questions about the conversation or to say when Eisenhower will decide whether to keep Nixon on the ticket with him.

Nixon earlier in Portland had told reporters through an associate he believed he would know within 48 hours of that time whether he will continue as the vice presidential nominee.

After the general's telephone call to Nixon, the vice presidential candidate's press secretary, James Bassett, announced in Portland that he couldn't answer whether any decision had been made on keeping Nixon in the race.

The Californian previously had charged that the expense money revelations constituted part of a "smear" against him by alleged Communist sympathizers.

Eisenhower is known to have declared that Nixon must come "clean as a hound's tooth" in financial matters if he hopes to remain.

Hagerty declined to say why Eisenhower had waited from last Friday, when he first learned of the incident, until last night to call Nixon. He couldn't say,

Breaks Off Trip to Give Information

Strong Indication Taken Eisenhower to Stand By His Running Mate in Campaign

Washington Senator Is to Give Talks in Nixon Behalf

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Sen. Richard Nixon today ordered a half hour of broadcast time tomorrow night, starting at 8:30 EST, on two radio networks and one television network for his report to the voters on his finances.

The telecast will be over NBC and a simultaneous radio broadcast over CBS and Mutual.

The total cost is expected to run in excess of $55,000, but the exact figure would be difficult to determine because of rebates to be made to commercial sponsors whose time periods are being taken over and uncertainties over how many stations will carry the speech.

NBC's full TV network of 63 connected stations normally costs $32,000 for an evening half-hour but company officials were not sure they would be able to clear all the stations for the speech. This does not include a rebate to sponsors of the Circle Theatre regularly carried at that time.

The CBS radio network is expected to cost a little over $13,000 for the half hour and the Mutual network perhaps as much.

Talk Is Planned

Portland, Ore., Sept. 11 (AP)—Sen. Richard Nixon, in the strongest sign yet that he will stay on as the Republican candidate for vice president, announced plans today for a dramatic radio-television report to the voters of America on his finances—personal and political.

The California senator, caught in a campaign squeeze by his $18,000 expense fund, broke off his current western trip temporarily to present his case before the people, either tomorrow or Wednesday night. But he emphasized that he intends to resume the tour.

"I informed General Eisenhower last night in a telephone conversation of my decision," Nixon told newsmen, referring to the radio-television plans, "and he agreed that that was the proper way to handle the situation."

It was immediately taken as a strong indication that Eisenhower has decided to stand by his young running mate. Nixon has contended he used the $18,000 for his fight against communism and corruption and not for personal profit.

A reporter asked whether Nixon's announcement, "means you are staying?"

Intends to Continue

"That means I intend to continue the tour," Nixon replied.

"Does it mean you are remaining on the ticket?"

"I have no further comment," he said.

Nixon said in his statement dictated to reporters shortly after 3 a. m. (EST), "in line with my conviction that the truth is the best answer both to a smear and to honest misunderstanding, I intend to lay before the American people all the facts concerning the fund which was used for political purposes, and in an unprecedented action I am going to present to the American people my entire personal financial history from the time I entered political life."

Disclosure of the donations by wealthy California supporters provoked Democratic charges that his acceptance of the money while serving as a senator was morally wrong. And it brought demands for his resignation as the Republicans' choice for vice president.

Some Republicans feared otherwise that it would cripple one of their major campaign attacks—against scandles in the Truman administration.

The 39-year-old candidate, who has charged an attempted smear by left wingers over the fund, said he has arranged for a half hour radio-television broadcast from Los Angeles over both the CBS and NBC networks Tuesday.

Chaplin Says He Will Return to U.S.

Leftist London Papers Give Him Praise—He Denies He Is 'Political'

Cherbourg, France, Sept. 22 (AP) —Charlie Chaplin, in high good humor despite a U. S. threat to bar him from returning to America, declared today "I intend to go back to the United States."

He described himself as an artist without political convictions and a firm believer in individualism and liberty. He said he did not know the reason behind the U. S. announcement that he may not be permitted to return.

"I am not political," Chaplin told a news conference aboard the Queen Elizabeth here. "I have never been political. I don't want to create any revolutions. I just want to create a few more films."

Asked why he had failed to take out American citizenship during his 30 years residence in the United States, Chaplin replied:

"I am not a super-patriot. I think super-patriotism leads to Hitlerism and we have had our lesson from that. I assume that in a democracy one has a right to a private opinion."

Reasons Not Explained

The U. S. threat to bar him, for reasons still unexplained, was made while Chaplin was at sea with his wife and children en route to London for the premiere of his new film, "Limelight." The Queen Elizabeth, on which he is traveling, touched here en route to England.

Chaplin's secretary, Harry Crocker, previously announced Chaplin intended to fight the U. S. ouster move.

Chaplin reviewed for reporters today his wartime speech-making activities and declared "I said nothing subversive—in my own opinion. They have always wanted to identify me with politics."

Asked to describe the motivation behind his motion pictures, Chaplin said "my motive force is to create good feeling, tolerance, and happiness. The character of the tramp, of course, is of the underdog. I am for people, I can't help it. That is the nature of the beast."

Denies Establishment

Chaplin denied he intended to establish permanent residence in Great Britain and said the statement of the U. S. Attorney General did not alter any of his previous plans.

Chaplin, nattily dressed in a pin-stripe blue suit, faced more than 50 French, American and British reporters on the liner Queen Elizabeth.

"I intend to go back to the United States," Chaplin said im-

Two Brothers Are Slain in Battle With Police, Upper Manhattan

New York, Sept. 22 (AP) — Two escaped convicts were shot to death yesterday in a furious gun battle with police after leaving a trail of terror across part of Pennsylvania into New York city.

A detective was mortally wounded in the hail of sub-machine gun and pistol fire.

The third member of a desperado trio was captured unhurt as 31 policemen blasted their way into the fugitives apartment hideout.

Joseph Nolen, 25, and his brother, Ballard, 22—two gun-crazy bad men from Harlan county, Ky. —died in the roaring five minutes of close-range fire.

Detective Philip Lamonica, 45, shot three times in the chest, died in a hospital a short time later.

Detective Nicholas Cotter, 34, was seriously wounded.

Captured was Elmer Schuer, 21, of Chicago, who broke out of the Lewisburg, Pa., Federal prison with the Nolen brothers on Sept. 10 They had been serving long terms for bank robbery.

There was an ironical twist to the captures—the trio never intended to come to New York.

Took Wrong Turn

After their escape, they wanted to head for Scranton, Pa., but took a wrong road turn in a stolen car. When they found themselves headed for New York, they figured they might as well "lose themselves in the crowds of the big city," police said.

Schuer told police about the trio's movements.

Schuer admitted, police said, that the trio stole a dozen weapons from a Bronx gun store last Monday and looted a Bronx bank of $12,670 in a daring daylight holdup the next day.

A vast manhunt had been pressed for the three men since they escaped from Lewisburg. Terrorizing a large section of Pennsylvania, they held a family of seven captive for 19 hours while they hid in their home, stole money and at least three cars, and stabbed a private-duty policeman.

Tip Leads to Trio

New York police, converging on a seventh-floor apartment in uptown Manhattan shortly after Saturday midnight on a tip that the fugitives were holed up there, found the place barricaded.

The fugitives were surprised in a tryst with three Negro women, all of whom were seized and held as material witnesses. The apartment bore evidence of a drinking bout.

Police said an unidentified suitor of one of the women—Arlene Ball, 32 — gave the information that led to the desperadoes' hideout. It happened this way, detectives said:

The four-room apartment was sublet from Miss Ball and the three men moved in last Friday.

Miss Ball's suitor, apparently not knowing about the sub-let, called on her Saturday and was beaten up and thrown out by the three gunmen. He went to police and told of his experience.

The other two women seized in

Five Americans Play Dead Until Buddies Rescue Them

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 22 (AP) — Five American soldiers played dead in a battered bunker on Old Baldy and lived to tell of a 72-hour nightmare without food, water or medical attention.

When their buddies from the U. S. Second Infantry Division recaptured the rugged hill Sunday, the five dazed men crawled or were carried from their underground shelter.

They had huddled in the dilapidated log and earth cave under the earth-shaking pounding of Allied and Communist big guns.

Twelve men had crawled into the bunker Thursday evening when an assault force of Chinese swarmed over their positions. Seven died in the bunker or may have escaped.

The account of their ordeal was given by Cpl. Ed Berlin, front line reporter for the Pacific Stars and Stripes, who interviewed the men on the scene. Berlin covers the fighting of the Second Division for the army paper.

Time and again during the first night, Berlin said, Chinese soldiers threw grenades into the small enclosure. Just as often, a Red soldier would peer in and open up with a spray of machine gun bullets. The trapped men fire back at each intruder.

Then the men in the bunker lay behind the bodies of their dead fellows and kept still, hoping, hoping, hoping the Reds would think them dead, too.

They hoped, too, that their buddies would soon retake the hill and get them out.

Both prayers were answered.

The Chinese finally decided that none could still be alive inside the bunker that had been literally covered with bullets. And, on Sunday night, troops of the "Indianhead" Division found them.

One of the survivors, a 22-year-old private first class from New York city, told Stars and Stripes:

"We couldn't have lasted another day but we know they wouldn't let Old Baldy go. We never lost hope and all of us prayed."

A big master sergeant from California said the men went without food the entire time although they had plenty of rations.

"We had no water so we were afraid to eat anything," he said.

The sergeant also related how the Chinese thought everyone in the bunker was dead.

"Logs and stuff were piled in the doorway and after the last Chinese sprayed us with his burp gun they let us alone, except for their artillery and tanks. We must have gotten at lease 150 direct or near hits."

The only food they touched during the 72 hours was a can of grapefruit juice and a couple of

Flood Group Plans Own Corporation

Committee Will Attempt Control Measures; Evans Speaks

Ulster county residents who suffered losses in floods along the Esopus creek during the past three years took steps at a meeting Saturday night to form a non-profit corporation.

The group had been meeting as an informal, self-styled "Ulster County Flood Committee" to press for certain flood control measures.

At Saturday's meeting at the county court house, those attending adopted a motion by Paul Bonestell to form a non-profit corporation with each member buying a share of stock in order to finance future activities. Elected as preliminary incorporators were John M. Walker, Paul Bonestell, Raymond Elmendorf, Charles Rinschler and Raymond Winne.

The action was taken after Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, explained how such a committee of organization could be established.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Horace Evans, executive director of the State Flood Control Commission, who pointed out that a "misunderstanding" exists relative to the part that towns, cities, counties and the state play in flood control work.

Woodstock Pilot Gets Credit for Second Probable Kill in Korea

Lt. Charles G. Cleveland, of Woodstock, yesterday kissed the MIGs goodbye and is credited by the U. S. Fifth Air Force with another "probable" kill in a fight between 10 Americans and 10 Red pilots.

Lt. Cleveland, a West Point graduate, who has been a first-flight wing commander for F-86 Sabre jets acting as escorts, also leaves for home today after more than 125 missions in Korea, his mother, Mrs. Orestes Cleveland, of the Bearsville road, Woodstock, told The Freeman.

His Score for Combat

Lt. Cleveland's second probable, for which he himself claimed a damaged MIG, was given after evaluation of gun camera film. His total score is two Communist planes destroyed, two probably destroyed and five damaged.

John J. Acker of East Kingston, an Ulster county highway department foreman for 21 years, died in this city on Sunday after a very short illness.

Born in East Kingston on Dec. 18, 1899, Acker was the son of the late James A. and Katie Meyer Acker. A lifelong Republican, he maintained an active interest in politics and in the affairs of his community.

Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks, Ulster Republican chairman, said today, "John Acker will be missed sorely, as an individual, a friend and a staunch and loyal Republican worker. To his bereaved family I offer my sincerest condolences."

He was a councilman for the town of Ulster, a trustee of the East Kingston school district, and a member of the East Kingston Volunteer Fire Company. He was a member of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer and of Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose.

He was also a part owner of the Acker Bus Line.

Surviving are his wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Kotula; six daughters, Mrs. Frederick Yaple of Kingston, and the Misses Jean, Beatrice, Betty Ann, Sandra and Sharon Acker, all of East Kingston; three sons, John J., Jr., U. S. Air Force, at the F. E Warren Air Base in Wyoming; George and

Soft Coal Miners Return To Pits; Strike Threat Ends

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22 (AP)—Northern soft coal miners, elated over a new contract which removes all threat of a strike and boosts daily wages to a new high, headed back to the pits today.

United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis completed the agreement Saturday night with Harry L. Moses, president of the Bituminous (soft) Coal Producers Association, just a few hours before the 170,000 miners were scheduled to go on strike.

The new pact gives the men a daily pay raise of $1.90 increasing wages to $18.25 a day.

It also requires operators to pay into the UMW welfare fund 40 cents for each ton of coal produced. Under the old pact operators were required to pay 30 cents.

Miners throughout the northern soft coal fields cheered loud and long when they learned terms of the agreement. Many referred to the contract as "Lewis' greatest victory."

Alfred Cavalcante, of Uniontown, Pa., president of the UMW Robena Mine Local, largest mine union local in the world, said:

"It's a very good contract. I've notified the men to report to work as usual on the first shift Monday morning. It's not necessary to call a special meeting of the local."

Moses, speaking for the operators, said the new contract undoubtedly will bring an increase in the price of coal. He added:

"We feel we have an obligation to apply for a price increase and we probably will."

But the settlement with the Bituminous Association doesn't clear

"In thus using the case—much of it raised through pressure on state employes—Stevenson has diverged from his announced intention to turn it over to the state Democratic central committee."

Used for Present Campaign

The Cincinnati Enquirer today, in a special story from Chicago, reported that a "personal fund" raised by Illinois state employes to back Stevenson's governor race was used for his presidential campaign.

The Cincinnati Enquirer also quoted Forsyth, a Springfield insurance man, Forsyth is now campaign manager for Lt. Gov. Sherwood E. Dixon, Stevenson's successor as candidate for governor.

General Has Phone Talk With Nixon on Finances

Eisenhower Will Give Another Major Address in Cincinnati With Taft Present — Will Speak on Foreign Policy

Aboard Eisenhower Train, Sept. 22 (AP)—The pendulum appeared swinging toward Sen. Richard M. Nixon today after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower talked to his vice presidential running-mate by telephone last night.

The Republican presidential nominee, off for a whistle-stop tour across southern Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and into Cincinnati, Ohio, tonight, called Nixon in Portland, Ore., about midnight from St. Louis.

While the results of their conversation were kept secret by Eisenhower's aides, there were some indications that the general may decide to ride out the political furor caused by Nixon's acceptance of an expense fund beyond his Senate salary and allowances.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James Hagerty, announced completion of the telephone call put in by Eisenhower, the first direct communication between the two Republican candidates since the presidential nominee was advised last Friday of the disclosures concerning the expense fund.

Declines Answers

Beyond saying that the two men had talked for 15 minutes, Hagerty declined to answer any questions about the conversation or to say when Eisenhower will decide whether to keep Nixon on the ticket with him.

Nixon earlier in Portland had told reporters through an associate he believed he would know within 48 hours of that time whether he will continue as the vice presidential nominee.

After the general's telephone call to Nixon, the vice presidential candidate's press secretary, James Bassett, announced in Portland that he couldn't answer whether any decision had been made on keeping Nixon in the race.

The Californian previously had charged that the expense money revelations constituted part of a "smear" against him by alleged Communist sympathizers.

Eisenhower is known to have declared that Nixon must come "clean as a hound's tooth" in financial matters if he hopes to remain.

Hagerty declined to say why Eisenhower had waited from last Friday, when he first learned of the incident, until last night to call Nixon. He couldn't say,

Breaks Off Trip to Give Information

Washington Senator Is to Give Talks in Nixon Behalf

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Sen. Richard Nixon today ordered a half hour of broadcast time tomorrow night, starting at 8:30 EST, on two radio networks and one television network for his report to the voters on his finances.

The telecast will be over NBC and a simultaneous radio broadcast over CBS and Mutual.

The total cost is expected to run in excess of $55,000, but the exact figure would be difficult to determine because of rebates to be made to commercial sponsors whose time periods are being taken over and uncertainties over how many stations will carry the speech.

NBC's full TV network of 63 connected stations normally costs $32,000 for an evening half-hour but company officials were not sure they would be able to clear all the stations for the speech. This does not include a rebate to sponsors of the Circle Theatre regularly carried at that time.

The CBS radio network is expected to cost a little over $13,000 for the half hour and the Mutual network perhaps as much.

Talk Is Planned

Portland, Ore., Sept. 11 (AP)—Sen. Richard Nixon, in the strongest sign yet that he will stay on as the Republican candidate for vice president, announced plans today for a dramatic radio-television report to the voters of America on his finances—personal and political.

The California senator, caught in a campaign squeeze by his $18,000 expense fund, broke off his current western trip temporarily to present his case before the people, either tomorrow or Wednesday night. But he emphasized that he intends to resume the tour.

"I informed General Eisenhower last night in a telephone conversation of my decision," Nixon told newsmen, referring to the radio-television plans, "and he agreed that that was the proper way to handle the situation."

It was immediately taken as a strong indication that Eisenhower has decided to stand by his young running mate. Nixon has contended he used the $18,000 for his fight against communism and corruption and not for personal profit.

A reporter asked whether Nixon's announcement, "means you are staying?"

Intends to Continue

"That means I intend to continue the tour," Nixon replied.

"Does it mean you are remaining on the ticket?"

"I have no further comment," he said.

Nixon said in his statement dictated to reporters shortly after 3 a. m. (EST), "in line with my conviction that the truth is the best answer both to a smear and to honest misunderstanding, I intend to lay before the American people all the facts concerning the fund which was used for political purposes, and in an unprecedented action I am going to present to the American people my entire personal financial history from the time I entered political life."

Disclosure of the donations by wealthy California supporters provoked Democratic charges that his acceptance of the money while serving as a senator was morally wrong. And it brought demands for his resignation as the Republicans' choice for vice president.

Some Republicans feared otherwise that it would cripple one of their major campaign attacks—against scandles in the Truman administration.

The 39-year-old candidate, who has charged an attempted smear by left wingers over the fund, said he has arranged for a half hour radio-television broadcast from Los Angeles over both the CBS and NBC networks Tuesday.

Chaplin Says He Will Return to U.S.

Leftist London Papers Give Him Praise—He Denies He Is 'Political'

Cherbourg, France, Sept. 22 (AP) —Charlie Chaplin, in high good humor despite a U. S. threat to bar him from returning to America, declared today "I intend to go back to the United States."

He described himself as an artist without political convictions and a firm believer in individualism and liberty. He said he did not know the reason behind the U. S. announcement that he may not be permitted to return.

"I am not political," Chaplin told a news conference aboard the Queen Elizabeth here. "I have never been political. I don't want to create any revolutions. I just want to create a few more films."

Asked why he had failed to take out American citizenship during his 30 years residence in the United States, Chaplin replied:

"I am not a super-patriot. I think super-patriotism leads to Hitlerism and we have had our lesson from that. I assume that in a democracy one has a right to a private opinion."

Reasons Not Explained

The U. S. threat to bar him, for reasons still unexplained, was made while Chaplin was at sea with his wife and children en route to London for the premiere of his new film, "Limelight." The Queen Elizabeth, on which he is traveling, touched here en route to England.

Chaplin's secretary, Harry Crocker, previously announced Chaplin intended to fight the U. S. ouster move.

Chaplin reviewed for reporters today his wartime speech-making activities and declared "I said nothing subversive—in my own opinion. They have always wanted to identify me with politics."

Asked to describe the motivation behind his motion pictures, Chaplin said "my motive force is to create good feeling, tolerance, and happiness. The character of the tramp, of course, is of the underdog. I am for people, I can't help it. That is the nature of the beast."

Denies Establishment

Chaplin denied he intended to establish permanent residence in Great Britain and said the statement of the U. S. Attorney General did not alter any of his previous plans.

Chaplin, nattily dressed in a pin-stripe blue suit, faced more than 50 French, American and British reporters on the liner Queen Elizabeth.

"I intend to go back to the United States," Chaplin said im-

Two Brothers Are Slain in Battle With Police, Upper Manhattan

New York, Sept. 22 (AP) — Two escaped convicts were shot to death yesterday in a furious gun battle with police after leaving a trail of terror across part of Pennsylvania into New York city.

A detective was mortally wounded in the hail of sub-machine gun and pistol fire.

The third member of a desperado trio was captured unhurt as 31 policemen blasted their way into the fugitives apartment hideout.

Joseph Nolen, 25, and his brother, Ballard, 22—two gun-crazy bad men from Harlan county, Ky. —died in the roaring five minutes of close-range fire.

Detective Philip Lamonica, 45, shot three times in the chest, died in a hospital a short time later.

Detective Nicholas Cotter, 34, was seriously wounded.

Captured was Elmer Schuer, 21, of Chicago, who broke out of the Lewisburg, Pa., Federal prison with the Nolen brothers on Sept. 10 They had been serving long terms for bank robbery.

There was an ironical twist to the captures—the trio never intended to come to New York.

Took Wrong Turn

After their escape, they wanted to head for Scranton, Pa., but took a wrong road turn in a stolen car. When they found themselves headed for New York, they figured they might as well "lose themselves in the crowds of the big city," police said.

Schuer told police about the trio's movements.

Schuer admitted, police said, that the trio stole a dozen weapons from a Bronx gun store last Monday and looted a Bronx bank of $12,670 in a daring daylight holdup the next day.

A vast manhunt had been pressed for the three men since they escaped from Lewisburg. Terrorizing a large section of Pennsylvania, they held a family of seven captive for 19 hours while they hid in their home, stole money and at least three cars, and stabbed a private-duty policeman.

Tip Leads to Trio

New York police, converging on a seventh-floor apartment in uptown Manhattan shortly after Saturday midnight on a tip that the fugitives were holed up there, found the place barricaded.

The fugitives were surprised in a tryst with three Negro women, all of whom were seized and held as material witnesses. The apartment bore evidence of a drinking bout.

Police said an unidentified suitor of one of the women—Arlene Ball, 32 — gave the information that led to the desperadoes' hideout. It happened this way, detectives said:

The four-room apartment was sublet from Miss Ball and the three men moved in last Friday.

Miss Ball's suitor, apparently not knowing about the sub-let, called on her Saturday and was beaten up and thrown out by the three gunmen. He went to police and told of his experience.

The other two women seized in

Five Americans Play Dead Until Buddies Rescue Them

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 22 (AP) — Five American soldiers played dead in a battered bunker on Old Baldy and lived to tell of a 72-hour nightmare without food, water or medical attention.

When their buddies from the U. S. Second Infantry Division recaptured the rugged hill Sunday, the five dazed men crawled or were carried from their underground shelter.

They had huddled in the dilapidated log and earth cave under the earth-shaking pounding of Allied and Communist big guns.

Twelve men had crawled into the bunker Thursday evening when an assault force of Chinese swarmed over their positions. Seven died in the bunker or may have escaped.

The account of their ordeal was given by Cpl. Ed Berlin, front line reporter for the Pacific Stars and Stripes, who interviewed the men on the scene. Berlin covers the fighting of the Second Division for the army paper.

Time and again during the first night, Berlin said, Chinese soldiers threw grenades into the small enclosure. Just as often, a Red soldier would peer in and open up with a spray of machine gun bullets. The trapped men fire back at each intruder.

Then the men in the bunker lay behind the bodies of their dead fellows and kept still, hoping, hoping, hoping the Reds would think them dead, too.

They hoped, too, that their buddies would soon retake the hill and get them out.

Both prayers were answered.

The Chinese finally decided that none could still be alive inside the bunker that had been literally covered with bullets. And, on Sunday night, troops of the "Indianhead" Division found them.

One of the survivors, a 22-year-old private first class from New York city, told Stars and Stripes:

"We couldn't have lasted another day but we know they wouldn't let Old Baldy go. We never lost hope and all of us prayed."

A big master sergeant from California said the men went without food the entire time although they had plenty of rations.

"We had no water so we were afraid to eat anything," he said.

The sergeant also related how the Chinese thought everyone in the bunker was dead.

"Logs and stuff were piled in the doorway and after the last Chinese sprayed us with his burp gun they let us alone, except for their artillery and tanks. We must have gotten at lease 150 direct or near hits."

The only food they touched during the 72 hours was a can of grapefruit juice and a couple of

Cleveland Scores Again In His Final Air Battle

Woodstock Pilot Gets Credit for Second Probable Kill in Korea

Lt. Charles G. Cleveland, of Woodstock, yesterday kissed the MIGs goodbye and is credited by the U. S. Fifth Air Force with another "probable" kill in a fight between 10 Americans and 10 Red pilots.

Lt. Cleveland, a West Point graduate, who has been a first-flight wing commander for F-86 Sabre jets acting as escorts, also leaves for home today after more than 125 missions in Korea, his mother, Mrs. Orestes Cleveland, of the Bearsville road, Woodstock, told The Freeman.

His Score for Combat

Lt. Cleveland's second probable, for which he himself claimed a damaged MIG, was given after evaluation of gun camera film. His total score is two Communist planes destroyed, two probably destroyed and five damaged.

Lt. Cleveland has been ordered to return to Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., and is expected there by the end of the week. His wife and son live at

Flood Group Plans Own Corporation

Committee Will Attempt Control Measures; Evans Speaks

Ulster county residents who suffered losses in floods along the Esopus creek during the past three years took steps at a meeting Saturday night to form a non-profit corporation.

The group had been meeting as an informal, self-styled "Ulster County Flood Committee" to press for certain flood control measures.

At Saturday's meeting at the county court house, those attending adopted a motion by Paul Bonestell to form a non-profit corporation with each member buying a share of stock in order to finance future activities. Elected as preliminary incorporators were John M. Walker, Paul Bonestell, Raymond Elmendorf, Charles Rinschler and Raymond Winne.

The action was taken after Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, explained how such a committee of organization could be established.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Horace Evans, executive director of the State Flood Control Commission, who pointed out that a "misunderstanding" exists relative to the part that towns, cities, counties and the state play in flood control work.

The Flood Control Commission was organized in 1936 by the Legislature as a result of severe floods in the Susquehanna Valley

Soft Coal Miners Return To Pits; Strike Threat Ends

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22 (AP)—Northern soft coal miners, elated over a new contract which removes all threat of a strike and boosts daily wages to a new high, headed back to the pits today.

United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis completed the agreement Saturday night with Harry L. Moses, president of the Bituminous (soft) Coal Producers Association, just a few hours before the 170,000 miners were scheduled to go on strike.

The new pact gives the men a daily pay raise of $1.90 increasing wages to $18.25 a day.

It also requires operators to pay into the UMW welfare fund 40 cents for each ton of coal produced. Under the old pact operators were required to pay 30 cents.

Miners throughout the northern soft coal fields cheered loud and long when they learned terms of the agreement. Many referred to the contract as "Lewis' greatest victory."

Alfred Cavalcante, of Uniontown, Pa., president of the UMW Robena Mine Local, largest mine union local in the world, said:

"It's a very good contract. I've notified the men to report to work as usual on the first shift Monday morning. It's not necessary to call a special meeting of the local."

Moses, speaking for the operators, said the new contract undoubtedly will bring an increase in the price of coal. He added:

"We feel we have an obligation to apply for a price increase and we probably will."

But the settlement with the Bituminous Association doesn't clear

Three Cars Collide In Early Mishap

No one appeared to be seriously injured when three automobiles collided on Route 9W in front of the Port Ewen school at 7:20 a. m. today, the sheriff's office reported.

Deputy Sheriff Albert Eisele reported that an automobile driven by Roger Spence Jones, 23, of 135 Pine Grove avenue ran into the rear of one driven by James R. Abbott, 26, of Boice's Lane, shoving it ahead into another vehicle driven by Casper Souers of Hinsdale street. The Abbott and Souers vehicles were stopped in the traffic lane at the time, Eisele reported.

Jones received a cut finger and bruises, and five passengers in the Abbott car were "shaken up" but declined medical attention, according to Eisele's report. The passengers were listed as Lucy Abbott and Marion Johnson of Boice's Lane, Lehman Chase of Wrentham street, Carmella Muccio of Groff street, and Maureen Ann Johnson, 5, of Boice's Lane.

Po'keepsie Youth Injured in Crash

Donald Evans, 16, of 17 Church street, Poughkeepsie, received a possible concussion when the automobile in which he was a passenger overturned off Route 9W near the Highland traffic circle, state police reported.

Raymond Green, 18, of 22 Washington avenue, Poughkeepsie, who troopers said was the owner and driver of the automobile, was arrested on a charge that he carried no proof of insurance in compliance with a recent state law applying to teen-age motorists.

Troopers said the two Poughkeepsie youths were going north on Route 9W when the driver "fell asleep" and the automobile ran off the highway and turned over about one-half mile south of the traffic circle about 3:50 a. m. Sunday.

Both the occupants were taken to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie, where Evans was admitted for treatment of possible concussion, and Green was released after treatment for a cut scalp and ear, troopers said. Green was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Albert Lester of Highland and the case was adjourned until Tuesday night.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 22 (AP)—It was a million dollar lightning bolt that struck the block-long Coliseum Saturday night. Flames razed the entertainment center within two hours. It had perhaps the biggest audience of any catastrophe in Tulsa history. Police estimated 12,000 curious were at the scene. Radio stations KRMG and KOME originated remote broadcasts by the burning buildings even as the walls crumbled. Other thousands saw the flames over KOTV.

Three Are Hurt As Car Hits Tree

Three persons were injured about 1:30 a. m. Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed head-on into a tree along the Zena road, state police reported.

George Francis, 20, of Woodstock, suffered severe lacerations of the scalp and forehead and a possible skull injury, troopers said. His condition was reported as "apparently good" at Kingston Hospital this morning.

Also injured were the driver of the automobile, Patrick J. Redmond, 21, of Yonkers, a U. S. Marine, and his twin sister, Joanne, troopers said. Redmond was treated at the hospital for lacerations of the forehead and abrasions of both shins, and his sister was treated for a fractured left leg, according to the report. All received treatment by Dr. Hans Cohn of Woodstock before being taken to the hospital.

Troopers said the automobile was traveling south on the Zena road when it failed to make a sharp left curve about one mile north of Zena and struck a tree, state police said.

Adlai Bite

Attempts to reach Forsyth in Springfield and St. Louis for comment on the reports were not successful immediately.

Monthly List Compiled

The Chicago Daily News story quoted William J. McKinney, a former state purchasing agent who said he compiled a monthly list of firms doing business with the state, and that copies of these lists were supplied to a former executive assistant of Stevenson now dead, James W. Mulroy, and George W. Mitchell, former state finance director.

McKinney was quoted as saying "I know the list was used to put the tab on the boys for campaign contributions. Some vendors used to come to me and telll me how much they kicked in. They figured it would help them get business.

"They told me of contributing amounts from $100 up to $5,000.

I never let these reported donations influence me in pacing orders."

McKinney was not available immediately for comment.

Mitchell resigned his state post late in 1950.

State Suppliers $100,000

The story said McKinney estimated the amount raised from state suppliers "upwards of $100,000." It said, however, that he didn't know how much was raised.

The Daily News named Joseph Knight, of Dow, Ill., a state insurance department employe, and William Miller of Ottawa, Ill., head of an engineering firm, as solicitors who obtained campaign funds from firms selling to the state.

Denies Pressure

Knight was quoted as saying total collections amounted to only "a fraction" of $100,000, and adding: "I never put the sledge on anybody. It was just that they wanted to contribute."

The Daily News story said "McKinney said he learned Gov. Stevenson gave instructions that no pressure nor promises were to be used but any amount contributed would be 'gratefully received.' "

The Tribune said Don Forsyth "refused to tell how big" the Stevenson "personal fund" was. The Tribune story continued:

"Some idea of the funds' size can be gathered from the fact that private citizens and businessmen, as well as state employes, were solicited for it. And the state employes—who are being pressured for two per cent of their annual salaries—total at least 30,464, according to the state director of finance, Joseph Pois.

"The state payroll in June was $8,171,880—or a yearly rate of $98,062,560. Two per cent of this alone is $1,961,250. There are many more part time employes."

Slips to Death

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—An unidentified man—apparently a cat burglar—slipped to his death over the weekend from the steep, slate roof of a church. His body was found today at the bottom of an airshaft on West 36th street. Police said the man, a Negro of about 25, apparently had moved up and down the slippery roof to get from one office window to another. The church backs up to an office building.

Treated at Hospital

Larry Dolce, 9, of Highland was treated at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie for loss of front teeth and a laceration of the mouth about 3 p. m. Saturday, according to a state police report. The boy was taken to the hospital by a motorist, Susan Pecoraro, also of Highland, who told troopers the boy rode his bicycle into the side of her automobile, state police reported.

Buono Is Injured

Michael Buono, Jr., 20, of Elm street, Saugerties, was treated at Kingston Hospital for a leg injury and cuts to his hands following an accident on Route 28 one mile west of Kingston about 2:15 a. m., Sunday, state police reported. Troopers said the automobile knocked down seven guard rail posts, plunged down a five-foot embankment and overturned.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Railroads and radio-television issues paced a higher stock market today.

Gains were well distributed throughout the list with scarcely a backward area showing. Gains ran on out to between 1 and 2 points, but most were fractional. Losses were entirely fractional in significant areas.

Trading stepped up considerably on the rise with the rate well above a million shares for the entire day. On Friday the total was 1,150,000 shares.

Quite a number of large blocks traded in the first hour, which accounted for a much heavier than usual total for that period.

Along with the railroads and radio-television issues, the steels, motors, chemicals, utilities and some aircrafts were well ahead.

Stocks moving up included Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Kennecott Copper, Dow Chemical, Zenith Radio, Radio Corp., Admiral Corp., and Paramount pictures.

The stock market Friday was higher all around in a rise that succeeded in cancelling out the last vestige of an earlier decline.

Stocks on the curb exchange today were generally higher and moderately active. Among advancing issues were Flying Tiger, Claude Neon, Standard Power & Light, and South Coast Corp. Moving lower were Mesabi Iron and Venezuela Petroleum.

The autum meeting of the Convocation of the Hudson, of the Diocese of New York, will be held Wednesday, Sept. 24, at St. John's Church, Albany avenue, the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, rector, announced today.

Bishop Boynton, suffragan bishop of New York, will preside at the meeting which will be held at 7 p. m. with a dinner served by the women of the Evening Branch Women's Auxiliary.

Speakers will include Bishop Boynton and Ted Gannaway of the program of the church.

The main address will be given by the Rt. Rev. Bravid W. Harris, DD, bishop of the missionary district of Liberia, West Africa.

Bishop Harris was elected at the meeting of the House of Bishops held in Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 1, 1945, and consecrated in the Church of Christ and St. Luke, Norfolk, Va., April 17, 1945.

Bishop Harris was for 20 years rector of Grace Church Norfolk, and from 1937 to 1944 was also archdeacon for colored work in the diocese of Southern Virginia. In 1943 he became secretary for Negro work in the division of Home Missions of the Church's National Council, a position he held until his election and consecration to the episcopate in 1945.

Chaplin Says He

mediately." My plans are not altered by the Attorney General's statement. As a matter of fact I don't know what the statement said."

The move to bar Chaplin was roundly denounced by British newspapers of all polititcal shades today.

Politics Hinted

"No man has done more than Charlie to build up the American film industry. If the U. S. really do turn him out, there will be a queer stink around the Statue of Liberty."

The Conservative Daily Mail carried a cartoon showing Uncle Sam, in the role of a stuffy butler, turning Chaplin, in tramp garb, away from a mansion representing America.

The Communist Daily Worker said, "There is a possibility that the whole affair is an election stunt," and remarked that Chaplin's "association with progressive opinion" had long made him a target of some American newspapers.

Donald Snyder Sentenced to Die

Carmel, Sept. 22 (AP)—Donald Snyder, convicted murderer of a nine-year-old girl, was sentenced today to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair the week of Oct. 26.

A jury deliberated an hour and 10 minutes last Monday before finding the 25-year-old Snyder guilty of both felonious murder and kidnaping murder in the stabbing of Betty June Arnold last June 11.

Snyder was holding the girl hostage after escaping from Green Haven State Prison where he was serving time for auto theft. Snyder admitted seizing the child and her mother of Mohopac, and trying to force the mother to drive him to New York.

When a police officer closed in, Snyder drove a knife into the little girl. The policeman shot Snyder twice, in the neck and shoulder.

Sentencing today was by County Judge John P. Donohoe. Snyder was taken at once by deputies to Sing Sing Prison at Ossining.

Snyder's attorney already has appealed the death sentence, an automatic procedure in New York State.

Troopers said the two Poughkeepsie youths were going north on Route 9W when the driver "fell asleep" and the automobile ran off the highway and turned over about one-half mile south of the traffic circle about 3:50 a. m. Sunday.

Both the occupants were taken to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie, where Evans was admitted for treatment of possible concussion, and Green was released after treatment for a cut scalp and ear, troopers said. Green was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Albert Lester of Highland and the case was adjourned until Tuesday night.

Three Are Hurt As Car Hits Tree

Three persons were injured about 1:30 a. m. Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed head-on into a tree along the Zena road, state police reported.

George Francis, 20, of Woodstock, suffered severe lacerations of the scalp and forehead and a possible skull injury, troopers said. His condition was reported as "apparently good" at Kingston Hospital this morning.

Also injured were the driver of the automobile, Patrick J. Redmond, 21, of Yonkers, a U. S. Marine, and his twin sister, Joanne, troopers said. Redmond was treated at the hospital for lacerations of the forehead and abrasions of both shins, and his sister was treated for a fractured left leg, according to the report. All received treatment by Dr. Hans Cohn of Woodstock before being taken to the hospital.

Troopers said the automobile was traveling south on the Zena road when it failed to make a sharp left curve about one mile north of Zena and struck a tree, state police said.

Adlai Bite

Attempts to reach Forsyth in Springfield and St. Louis for comment on the reports were not successful immediately.

Monthly List Compiled

The Chicago Daily News story quoted William J. McKinney, a former state purchasing agent who said he compiled a monthly list of firms doing business with the state, and that copies of these lists were supplied to a former executive assistant of Stevenson now dead, James W. Mulroy, and George W. Mitchell, former state finance director.

McKinney was quoted as saying "I know the list was used to put the tab on the boys for campaign contributions. Some vendors used to come to me and telll me how much they kicked in. They figured it would help them get business.

"They told me of contributing amounts from $100 up to $5,000.

I never let these reported donations influence me in pacing orders."

McKinney was not available immediately for comment.

Mitchell resigned his state post late in 1950.

State Suppliers $100,000

The story said McKinney estimated the amount raised from state suppliers "upwards of $100,000." It said, however, that he didn't know how much was raised.

The Daily News named Joseph Knight, of Dow, Ill., a state insurance department employe, and William Miller of Ottawa, Ill., head of an engineering firm, as solicitors who obtained campaign funds from firms selling to the state.

Denies Pressure

Knight was quoted as saying total collections amounted to only "a fraction" of $100,000, and adding: "I never put the sledge on anybody. It was just that they wanted to contribute."

The Daily News story said "McKinney said he learned Gov. Stevenson gave instructions that no pressure nor promises were to be used but any amount contributed would be 'gratefully received.'"

The Tribune said Don Forsyth "refused to tell how big" the Stevenson "personal fund" was. The Tribune story continued:

"Some idea of the funds' size can be gathered from the fact that private citizens and businessmen, as well as state employes, were solicited for it. And the state employes—who are being pressured for two per cent of their annual salaries—total at least 30,464, according to the state director of finance, Joseph Pois.

"The state payroll in June was $8,171,880—or a yearly rate of $98,062,560. Two per cent of this alone is $1,961,250. There are many more part time employes."

Slips to Death

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—An unidentified man—apparently a cat burglar—slipped to his death over the weekend from the steep, slate roof of a church. His body was found today at the bottom of an airshaft on West 36th street. Police said the man, a Negro of about 25, apparently had moved up and down the slippery roof to get from one office window to another. The church backs up to an office building.

Treated at Hospital

Larry Dolce, 9, of Highland was treated at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie for loss of front teeth and a laceration of the mouth about 3 p. m. Saturday, according to a state police report. The boy was taken to the hospital by a motorist, Susan Pecoraro, also of Highland, who told troopers the boy rode his bicycle into the side of her automobile, state police reported.

Buono Is Injured

Michael Buono, Jr., 20, of Elm street, Saugerties, was treated at Kingston Hospital for a leg injury and cuts to his hands following an accident on Route 28 one mile west of Kingston about 2:15 a. m., Sunday, state police reported. Troopers said the automobile knocked down seven guard rail posts, plunged down a five-foot embankment and overturned.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Railroads and radio-television issues paced a higher stock market today.

Gains were well distributed throughout the list with scarcely a backward area showing. Gains ran on out to between 1 and 2 points, but most were fractional. Losses were entirely fractional in significant areas.

Trading stepped up considerably on the rise with the rate well above a million shares for the entire day. On Friday the total was 1,150,000 shares.

Quite a number of large blocks traded in the first hour, which accounted for a much heavier than usual total for that period.

Along with the railroads and radio-television issues, the steels, motors, chemicals, utilities and some aircrafts were well ahead.

Stocks moving up included Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Kennecott Copper, Dow Chemical, Zenith Radio, Radio Corp., Admiral Corp., and Paramount pictures.

The stock market Friday was higher all around in a rise that succeeded in cancelling out the last vestige of an earlier decline.

Stocks on the curb exchange today were generally higher and moderately active. Among advancing issues were Flying Tiger, Claude Neon, Standard Power & Light, and South Coast Corp. Moving lower were Mesabi Iron and Venezuela Petroleum.

BISHOP B. W. HARRIS

The autum meeting of the Convocation of the Hudson, of the Diocese of New York, will be held Wednesday, Sept. 24, at St. John's Church, Albany avenue, the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, rector, announced today.

Bishop Boynton, suffragan bishop of New York, will preside at the meeting which will be held at 7 p. m. with a dinner served by the women of the Evening Branch Women's Auxiliary.

Speakers will include Bishop Boynton and Ted Gannaway of the program of the church.

The main address will be given by the Rt. Rev. Bravid W. Harris, DD, bishop of the missionary district of Liberia, West Africa.

Bishop Harris was elected at the meeting of the House of Bishops held in Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 1, 1945, and consecrated in the Church of Christ and St. Luke, Norfolk, Va., April 17, 1945.

Bishop Harris was for 20 years rector of Grace Church Norfolk, and from 1937 to 1944 was also archdeacon for colored work in the diocese of Southern Virginia. In 1943 he became secretary for Negro work in the division of Home Missions of the Church's National Council, a position he held until his election and consecration to the episcopate in 1945.

Bishop Harris was born in Warrenton, N. C., Jan. 6, 1896. He was educated at St. Augustine's College and the Bishop Payne Divinity School, both institutions affiliated with the American Church Institute for Negroes. He was ordained in 1921, and before his long rectorate at Norfolk, he wes priest in charge of All Saint's Church, Warrenton. In 1946 the Virginia Theological Seminary conferred upon him the degree of Doctor in Divinity.

Chaplin Says He

mediately." My plans are not altered by the Attorney General's statement. As a matter of fact I don't know what the statement said."

The move to bar Chaplin was roundly denounced by British newspapers of all polilitical shades today.

Politics Hinted

"No man has done more than Charlie to build up the American film industry. If the U. S. really do turn him out, there will be a queer stink around the Statue of Liberty."

The Conservative Daily Mail carried a cartoon showing Uncle Sam, in the role of a stuffy butler, turning Chaplin, in tramp garb, away from a mansion representing America.

The Communist Daily Worker said, "There is a possibility that the whole affair is an election stunt," and remarked that Chaplin's "association with progressive opinion" had long made him a target of some American newspapers.

Donald Snyder Sentenced to Die

Carmel, Sept. 22 (AP)—Donald Snyder, convicted murderer of a nine-year-old girl, was sentenced today to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair the week of Oct. 26.

A jury deliberated an hour and 10 minutes last Monday before finding the 25-year-old Snyder guilty of both felonious murder and kidnaping murder in the stabbing of Betty June Arnold last June 11.

Snyder was holding the girl hostage after escaping from Green Haven State Prison where he was serving time for auto theft. Snyder admitted seizing the child and her mother of Mohopac, and trying to force the mother to drive him to New York.

When a police officer closed in, Snyder drove a knife into the little girl. The policeman shot Snyder twice, in the neck and shoulder.

Sentencing today was by County Judge John P. Donohoe. Snyder was taken at once by deputies to Sing Sing Prison at Ossining.

Snyder's attorney already has appealed the death sentence, an automatic procedure in New York State.

Dewey Will Begin Campaign Work; Is Happy Over Taft

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—Gov. Dewey hits the campaign trail this week reportedly "delighted" that Sen. Robert A. Taft, the man he helped Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower defeat at Chicago, had thrown his full support behind the GOP presidential drive.

A source close to Dewey, who asked not to be named, so described the Governor's view yesterday. It was the first reaction from Dewey to Taft's decision.

Dewey has long been at odds with Taft over party policies.

Meanwhile, the governor's office announced that Dewey would kick off his state campaign for Eisenhower and the national, state and local Republican tickets Wednesday night in a television broadcast from New York city.

The 15-minute telecast (NBC-TV), to be paid for by the GOP state campaign committee, will be carried on a statewide hookup through outlets in Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Binghamton, Utica and Schenectady (6:15 p. m., EST).

To Get Ball Rolling

Before shoving off for New York, Dewey will get the ball rolling on a drive to get out the upstate farm vote in November. A rural voters' committee was to be organized today at a luncheon in the Executive Mansion.

Dewey's telecast will be the first of a series to be sponsored by the committee.

His office said he had heavy radio and television commitments in New York city between now and Nov. 4. The governor feels he can put in some good licks for Eisenhower in the metropolis, where Dewey in previous national and state campaigns made heavy dents in the large pluralities traditionally amassed by the Democrats.

Dewey's program lists two major television appearances during October—on "Meet the Press" (NBC-TV) the 19th and on the New York Times "Youth Forum" (Dumont) on the 26th.

Dewey used television to good advantage in the stretch of his 1950 gubernatorial campaign against Walter A. Lynch, Bronx Democrat.

Lake George, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—William H. Frank, Jr., 66, a field representative of the state Safety Division's Bureau of fires, died yesterday at the Lake View Hotel.

Frank, former fire chief of Poughkeepsie, collapsed at a meeting of the board of directors of the Hudson Valley Firemen's Association. The board was making plans for next year's convention here.

Frank is survived by his widow, Marie.

A funeral service will be held Wednesday in Red Hook. Burial will be in Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP) — The British have just announced a breathless discovery—breathless beer.

They treat it with a chlorophyl process and (it says here) the beer tastes as good as ever—and no matter how much you drink even your monther-in-law can't smell it on you.

But the English chemists who disclosed they had married beer and chlorophyll might as well save their breath if they intend to brag they have something new.

Pravda is suer to find out later that breathless beer actually was first discovered in the year 1206 by a Russian peasant who dropped a handful of clover in a brewery near Pinsk.

A study of scientific claims emanating from Moscow in recent years shows that most of mankind's breath-taking discoveries originated within the area of the Soviet Union, no matter what the reference books say.

However, They Will

So far the Kremlin's mimeograph machines, busily rewriting history, haven't taken up Russian priority in the field of chlorophyll and beer. But they will.

Look how long they waited until they pointed out that the great American game of "Beizbol" was just a murderous corruption of an ancient Russian village sport, lapta. The only inventions the Soviet propagandists admit the free world came up with first are: (1) The pogo stick; (2) bubble gum; (3) the waffle iron, and (4) the electric chair.

The new Soviet thirst to be first in everything has led them to claim they taught the Norsemen how to sail and pioneered the Red Cross. In 1948 they even discovered that Russian clocks had been .005 seconds ahead of time for 66 years.

Other Claims Made

Here is a brief catalog of other claims:

They invented synthetic rubber, the gasoline engine, radio, television (Oh, so they're responsible!), sound movies, the tractor, the harvester, the telegraph, jet-propulsion, and the first life from non-living matter.

Their innovations in warfare: The submarine, the balloon, the parachute (1911), the airplane, rocket artillery, naval mines, the tank, the floating drydock, the battle cruiser, the jet airplane, and the first atomic bomb model.

They paced the field with the first oil well, milling machine and lathe, a fluid to cure skin cancers, painless birth, electronic rainmaking machines, the use of manure to fertilize the soil, vitamins and penicillin.

Oh, So Many Things

They also had the first theory of evolution, saw the first blizzard on Mars, and discovered the atmosphere on the planet Venus. You think flying saucers are new? How about that first interplanetary space ship that the Russians say "may have" crashed in Siberia in 1908? You'd think that with all the millions since shunted to Siberia they'd find the wreckage.

Who invented the motor car? A Russian serf 200 years ago. What did Alexander Graham Bell invent? Don't say the telephone. Chalk that up to a good old comrade Pavel Schilling of Russia.

The odd thing is that while Russians invented the telephone, motor car, sound movies and television sets there are millions more of these gadgets in America than in Russia. Why? The Soviet answer is simple:

"Capitalistic exploitation of the working man."

But Soviet science marches on. One of its newest inventions: An artificial arm that can use a machine gun.

Wouldn't Ivan rather have a fine practical artificial arm like that than a new motor car which, after all, would only take his mind off the class struggle?

Two Million Major Crimes Are Predicted

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP) — More than two million major crimes will be committed this year, the FBI says in its semi-annual report.

For the first six months of 1952, the report estimated, the nation had 1,022,200 major crimes, A 6.4 per cent increase over the corresponding period a year ago.

A breakdown gave these average rates:

One murder, manslaughter, rape or assault to kill every 4.6 minutes; one larceny every 26 seconds; one auto theft every 2.45 minutes; one aggravated assault every 6.23 minutes; one rape every half-hour.

All these crimes except rape increased substantially during the first half of 1952 over the first half of 1951, the FBI said. Rape declined one-tenth of one per cent.

Arrests were more frequent among 18-year-olds during the first six months of 1952, the report said. The 23-year-old age group predominated in the 1951 period.

The report, issued yesterday, is based on data supplied by local police departments.

Truman Will Speak At Harlem Rally

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—President Truman will make a return appearance in Harlem—center of New York's negro population—on Saturday, Oct. 11, to deliver a major address on civil rights.

Truman's acceptance of an invitation by the International Ministers Alliance of greater New York and vicinity was announced yesterday.

The speech is scheduled in Dorrence Brooks Park, where the President delivered a civil rights address during the 1948 campaign. Fifty thousand persons heard him then.

The alliance will present Truman with its sixth annual Franklin D. Roosevelt award for "the greatest contribution to the cause of human rights."

In 1948 he received the second annual award, so he will become its first double recipient.

Plans Police School

Police Chief Raymond Van Buren announced today that a police school for members of the local department will start here Sept. 29. Classes will be held from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. on Mondays for five weeks. The instructor will be Dennis Hurley, an attorney employed by the state department of safety.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD S. THIBAUT, Jr.

Life Presents Feature Story On David Smith

Woodstock, Sept. 22 — David Smith, noted sculptor, who was one of the panel of speakers at the Fourth Annual Art Conference held at the Art Students League last August, is the subject of a feature picture story in Life magazine, the issue of Sept. 22.

The first full page picture of Smith in the story, titled "An Artistic Smith at Work" shows him in a welder's suit and helmet. "Although this spark-strewn scene" says Life, "might have been photographed in an iron foundry, it actually took place in the studio of a sculptor named David Smith. Smith began his art training in the Studebaker plant in South Bend, Ind. Since then he has been welding and riveting his way into galleries and museums all over the country, creating abstract, often whimsical structures out of nuts, bolts, steel and other metals. Though his sculpture has earned him tremendous prestige, it has brought only a meager income. To pay for the expensive metal that engulfs his studio, Smith hires out from time to time as a professional welder in a machine shop or fills in as the village smith for his farmer neighbors in upstate New York."

Several of Smith's works are pictures in the article. Hudson River Landscape was "evolved from sketches made on train between Albany and Poughkeepsie, suggests hills, tracks, wire of countryside. Another, Banquet, is "neatly arrayed with abstract steel platters and glassware is also adorned with Greeklike letters to symbolize meaningless after-dinner speeches."

Four Soldiers are shown "in striding, staggering and stumbling atitudes." They were "pieced together out of turnbuckles and screws Smith salvaged from junk piles." The Billiard Player has a "body which merges with billiard table because, says Smith, he has to 'lean, lie on and become part of the table' when playing."

Defense Unit Plans Blood Campaign

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—The New York State Civil Defense Commission has made plans for the biggest emergency collection of fresh blood in medical history—40,000 pints of whole blood every six hours—in the event of an A-bomb attack.

This was revealed yesterday in an announcement that said the collection would produce more blood per day than was collected throughout the whole country during the week after the Normandy invasion.

The blood from 40,000 donors would be shipped to the attacked area on a regular schedule.

"An atom bombing of one of our large cities," said Lt. Gen. C. R. Huebner, state civil defense director, "would result within moments in an estimated 80,000 dead and another 80,000 wounded. Of the latter, a large majority would require immediately fresh blood for their survival."

To Need Transfusions

Many additional thousands, he added, would need whole blood transfusions within a day or a few days—apart from the need for blood substitutes and plasma, which can be stockpiled.

To handle the vast blood program, the commission is planning to train 20,000 volunteer collectors.

They "must be trained in assembly-line blood collecting, packaging and shipping" and be ready to go "into instant emergency action" throughout the state, Huebner said.

Key instructors are already being trained upstate, he said, and a week-long session is to begin today in New York city.

Hyland Is Dead

Southampton, Sept. 22 (AP)—Richard V. Hyland, 57, whose engineering consultant firm worked on the 1949 World's Fair site, the Triborough and Bronx-Whitestone bridges and a number of parkway, died Saturday night. The firm, Madigan-Hyland, which he helped to found 23 years ago, now is acting as consultant to the New York State Thruway Authority in the building of a superhighway between New York and Buffalo. It also is involved in construction of a bridge across the Tappan Zee, linking Rockland and Westchester county sections of the Thruway. Hyland was a native of Penn Yan.

First Day Was Chilly

(By The Associated Press)

The first day of autumn was chilly almost everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains, and wet in many sections of the east and midwest. Temperatures were below normal except along the Gulf coast. Showers or light rain was reported in the Great Lakes, upper Mississippi Valley, Southern Rockies, Southern Plains and the South Atlantic States regions. The weather west of the Rockies continued mild.

Mercury becomes solid at about 39 degrees below zero centigrade.

House Asks Why No Tax Exams

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP) — House investigators said today they are asking the Internal Revenue Bureau to explain why most of the top jobs in a big reorganization are being filled without competitive civil service examinations.

The bureau has called for competitive tests—open to anyone who wants to apply—on only 26 of the 175 new positions to be filled in a shakeup approved by Congress after a rash of scandals in the bureau.

More than 80 per cent of the posts, paying from $9,600 to $13,800 a year, are being filled, from within the service itself, by direct appointment by Secretary of Treasury Snyder and Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap.

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

Dewey Will Begin Campaign Work; Is Happy Over Taft

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—Gov. Dewey hits the campaign trail this week reportedly "delighted" that Sen. Robert A. Taft, the man he helped Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower defeat at Chicago, had thrown his full support behind the GOP presidential drive.

A source close to Dewey, who asked not to be named, so described the Governor's view yesterday. It was the first reaction from Dewey to Taft's decision.

Dewey has long been at odds with Taft over party policies.

Meanwhile, the governor's office announced that Dewey would kick off his state campaign for Eisenhower and the national, state and local Republican tickets Wednesday night in a television broadcast from New York city.

The 15-minute telecast (NBC-TV), to be paid for by the GOP state campaign committee, will be carried on a statewide hookup through outlets in Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Binghamton, Utica and Schenectady (6:15 p. m., EST).

To Get Ball Rolling

Before shoving off for New York, Dewey will get the ball rolling on a drive to get out the upstate farm vote in November. A rural voters' committee was to be organized today at a luncheon in the Executive Mansion.

Dewey's telecast will be the first of a series to be sponsored by the committee.

His office said he had heavy radio and television commitments in New York city between now and Nov. 4. The governor feels he can put in some good licks for Eisenhower in the metropolis, where Dewey in previous national and state campaigns made heavy dents in the large pluralities traditionally amassed by the Democrats.

Dewey's program lists two major television appearances during October—on "Meet the Press" (NBC-TV) the 19th and on the New York Times "Youth Forum" (Dumont) on the 26th.

Dewey used television to good advantage in the stretch of his 1950 gubernatorial campaign against Walter A. Lynch, Bronx Democrat.

Ex-Fire Chief Dies At Upstate Resort

Lake George, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—William H. Frank, Jr., 66, a field representative of the state Safety Division's Bureau of fires, died yesterday at the Lake View Hotel.

Frank, former fire chief of Poughkeepsie, collapsed at a meeting of the board of directors of the Hudson Valley Firemen's Association. The board was making plans for next year's convention here.

Frank is survived by his widow, Marie.

A funeral service will be held Wednesday in Red Hook. Burial will be in Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP) — The British have just announced a breathless discovery—breathless beer.

They treat it with a chlorophyl process and (it says here) the beer tastes as good as ever—and no matter how much you drink even your monther-in-law can't smell it on you.

But the English chemists who disclosed they had married beer and chlorophyll might as well save their breath if they intend to brag they have something new.

Pravda is suer to find out later that breathless beer actually was first discovered in the year 1206 by a Russian peasant who dropped a handful of clover in a brewery near Pinsk.

A study of scientific claims emanating from Moscow in recent years shows that most of mankind's breath-taking discoveries originated within the area of the Soviet Union, no matter what the reference books say.

However, They Will

So far the Kremlin's mimeograph machines, busily rewriting history, haven't taken up Russian priority in the field of chlorophyll and beer. But they will.

Look how long they waited until they pointed out that the great American game of "Beizbol" was just a murderous corruption of an ancient Russian village sport, lapta. The only inventions the Soviet propagandists admit the free world came up with first are: (1) The pogo stick; (2) bubble gum; (3) the waffle iron, and (4) the electric chair.

The new Soviet thirst to be first in everything has led them to claim they taught the Norsemen how to sail and pioneered the Red Cross. In 1948 they even discovered that Russian clocks had been .005 seconds ahead of time for 66 years.

Other Claims Made

Here is a brief catalog of other claims:

They invented synthetic rubber, the gasoline engine, radio, television (Oh, so they're responsible!), sound movies, the tractor, the harvester, the telegraph, jet-propulsion, and the first life from non-living matter.

Their innovations in warfare: The submarine, the balloon, the parachute (1911), the airplane, rocket artillery, naval mines, the tank, the floating drydock, the battle cruiser, the jet airplane, and the first atomic bomb model.

They paced the field with the first oil well, milling machine and lathe, a fluid to cure skin cancers, painless birth, electronic rainmaking machines, the use of manure to fertilize the soil, vitamins and penicillin.

Oh, So Many Things

They also had the first theory of evolution, saw the first blizzard on Mars, and discovered the atmosphere on the planet Venus. You think flying saucers are new? How about that first interplanetary space ship that the Russians say "may have" crashed in Siberia in 1908? You'd think that with all the millions since shunted to Siberia they'd find the wreckage.

Who invented the motor car? A Russian serf 200 years ago. What did Alexander Graham Bell invent? Don't say the telephone. Chalk that up to a good old comrade Pavel Schilling of Russia.

The odd thing is that while Russians invented the telephone, motor car, sound movies and television sets there are millions more of these gadgets in America than in Russia. Why? The Soviet answer is simple:

"Capitalistic exploitation of the working man."

But Soviet science marches on. One of its newest inventions: An artificial arm that can use a machine gun.

Wouldn't Ivan rather have a fine practical artificial arm like that than a new motor car which, after all, would only take his mind off the class struggle?

Defense Unit Plans Blood Campaign

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—The New York State Civil Defense Commission has made plans for the biggest emergency collection of fresh blood in medical history—40,000 pints of whole blood every six hours—in the event of an A-bomb attack.

This was revealed yesterday in an announcement that said the collection would produce more blood per day than was collected throughout the whole country during the week after the Normandy invasion.

The blood from 40,000 donors would be shipped to the attacked area on a regular schedule.

"An atom bombing of one of our large cities," said Lt. Gen. C. R. Huebner, state civil defense director, "would result within moments in an estimated 80,000 dead and another 80,000 wounded. Of the latter, a large majority would require immediately fresh blood for their survival."

To Need Transfusions

Many additional thousands, he added, would need whole blood transfusions within a day or a few days—apart from the need for blood substitutes and plasma, which can be stockpiled.

To handle the vast blood program, the commission is planning to train 20,000 volunteer collectors.

They "must be trained in assembly-line blood collecting, packaging and shipping" and be ready to go "into instant emergency action" throughout the state, Huebner said.

Key instructors are already being trained upstate, he said, and a week-long session is to begin today in New York city.

Hyland Is Dead

Southampton, Sept. 22 (AP)—Richard V. Hyland, 57, whose engineering consultant firm worked on the 1948 World's Fair site, the Triborough and Bronx-Whitestone bridges and a number of parkway, died Saturday night. The firm, Madigan-Hyland, which he helped to found 23 years ago, now is acting as consultant to the New York State Thruway Authority in the building of a superhighway between New York and Buffalo. It also is involved in construction of a bridge across the Tappan Zee, linking Rockland and Westchester county sections of the Thruway. Hyland was a native of Penn Yan.

First Day Was Chilly

(By The Associated Press)

The first day of autumn was chilly almost everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains, and wet in many sections of the east and midwest. Temperatures were below normal except along the Gulf coast. Showers or light rain was reported in the Great Lakes, upper Mississippi Valley, Southern Rockies, Southern Plains and the South Atlantic States regions. The weather west of the Rockies continued mild.

Two Million Major Crimes Are Predicted

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP) — More than two million major crimes will be committed this year, the FBI says in its semi-annual report.

For the first six months of 1952, the report estimated, the nation had 1,022,200 major crimes, A 6.4 per cent increase over the corresponding period a year ago.

A breakdown gave these average rates:

One murder, manslaughter, rape or assault to kill every 4.6 minutes; one larceny every 26 seconds; one auto theft every 2.45 minutes; one aggravated assault every 6.23 minutes; one rape every half-hour.

All these crimes except rape increased substantially during the first half of 1952 over the first half of 1951, the FBI said. Rape declined one-tenth of one per cent.

Arrests were more frequent among 18-year-olds during the first six months of 1952, the report said. The 23-year-old age group predominated in the 1951 period.

The report, issued yesterday, is based on data supplied by local police departments.

Truman Will Speak At Harlem Rally

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—President Truman will make a return appearance in Harlem—center of New York's negro population—on Saturday, Oct. 11, to deliver a major address on civil rights.

Truman's acceptance of an invitation by the International Ministers Alliance of greater New York and vicinity was announced yesterday.

The speech is scheduled in Dorrence Brooks Park, where the President delivered a civil rights address during the 1948 campaign. Fifty thousand persons heard him then.

The alliance will present Truman with its sixth annual Franklin D. Roosevelt award for "the greatest contribution to the cause of human rights."

In 1948 he received the second annual award, so he will become its first double recipient.

Plans Police School

Police Chief Raymond Van Buren announced today that a police school for members of the local department will start here Sept. 29. Classes will be held from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. on Mondays for five weeks. The instructor will be Dennis Hurley, an attorney employed by the state department of safety.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

Life Presents Feature Story On David Smith

Woodstock, Sept. 22 — David Smith, noted sculptor, who was one of the panel of speakers at the Fourth Annual Art Conference held at the Art Students League last August, is the subject of a feature picture story in Life magazine, the issue of Sept. 22.

The first full page picture of Smith in the story, titled "An Artistic Smith at Work" shows him in a welder's suit and helmet. "Although this spark-strewn scene" says Life, "might have been photographed in an iron foundry, it actually took place in the studio of a sculptor named David Smith. Smith began his art training in the Studebaker plant in South Bend, Ind. Since then he has been welding and riveting his way into galleries and museums all over the country, creating abstract, often whimsical structures out of nuts, bolts, steel and other metals. Though his sculpture has earned him tremendous prestige, it has brought only a meager income. To pay for the expensive metal that engulfs his studio, Smith hires out from time to time as a professional welder in a machine shop or fills in as the village smith for his farmer neighbors in upstate New York."

Several of Smith's works are pictures in the article. Hudson River Landscape was "evolved from sketches made on train between Albany and Poughkeepsie, suggests hills, tracks, wire of countryside. Another, Banquet, is "neatly arrayed with abstract steel platters and glassware is also adorned with Greeklike letters to symbolize meaningless after-dinner speeches."

Four Soldiers are shown "in striding, staggering and stumbling attitudes." They were "pieced together out of turnbuckles and screws Smith salvaged from junk piles." The Billiard Player has a "body which merges with billiard table because, says Smith, he has to 'lean, lie on and become part of the table' when playing."

STRENGTH AND HUMILITY

True humility is the expression of strength which has explored and recognized its limits. Without real humility strength is merely force and its fruits are vanity, arrogance and eventually an unconsolable bitterness at failure.

Two miners struggled to move a heavy rock and their muscles strained to the task, the sweat pouring from their faces. It became apparent that they could not move it, so they called another man to help them. With his aid the rock was easily moved. Calling the third man after they had determined that it was not a two-man job was the logical, intelligent way to meet the problem. Had they called him before they made sure he was needed they would have been lazy, dishonest and unfair. They might also have lost the respect of the man who helped.

Calling on power greater than our own when we meet problems of the spirit is not an admission of weakness. It is rather an affirmation of faith that there is a Divine hand ready to help when the burden becomes too heavy for our own strength. The help that comes brings with it dignity for it is a statement that man can be the instrument through which Divine power flows and is applied.

Yet without our own greatest effort to meet our own need help from God will not come. And without an admission that our own strength is limited we cannot truly turn our faces toward heaven with any hope of answer.

The fellow content to cruise along day by day avoiding any exertion must be finding the going difficult—it is getting harder and harder not to get a job.

USING CHIANG'S TROOPS

A few months ago the suggestion was often heard that we were overlooking something in not turning Chiang Kai-shek's troops, now on Formosa, loose on the mainland against the Communists. Their number was sometimes put as high as 700,000, and we were told that they were aching to fight.

This cry will probably be heard less frequently now that General Eisenhower has definitely pronounced against it. Asked in Chicago if he would use "the several hundred thousand Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa," he said that not that many troops were there, and that the problem in Korea was not primarily one of manpower. He seemed to think that all that could be expected of Chiang's men would be for them to hold their present positions.

His reluctance to call in whatever number of Nationalists are available may conceal a feeling that we would be held responsible if we summoned them to help us, and they then got into difficulties.

Ceiling prices on cigars have been lifted. We hope the time never comes when some one will suggest that what this country needs is a good five dollar cigar.

PARKING PLACE PICKLE

Business is the worst victim of any town's parking problem. The automobile has become as necessary to American family life as the telephone, radio, daily newspaper or washing machine. More and more people use their cars for every small errand. They won't walk unless forced to—and then they will complain. Coming into town from the country on Friday night entails parking confusion. As the town's population increases for a few hours of one evening in the week, parking headaches multiply.

People will avoid business districts in which parking is a major question and business enterprises situated in such districts will take a heavy loss in sales. Seeking solutions to these problems, the United States Chamber of Commerce has published a series of five pamphlets on the subject. They have also organized another series of "parking clinics." The first of these was held at Anderson, Indiana. Others are scheduled.

A workable solution may be realized from these meetings and some good assistance may come from the pamphlets. The gradual down-grade of local business activities, because of lack of parking facilities, is depressing. The only answer is off-street parking to relieve traffic congestion. This is a problem which will have to be worked out on local levels all over the nation.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

TALK IS EASY

Adlai Stevenson, in reply to a question about Korea, said:

"I hope that public opinion, without reference to the period of the campaign or any other event, will continue to maintain the resolute patience and wisdom about the Korean problem which it has exhibited in the main thus far. . . ."

That kind of talk is easy and inconclusive. Adlai Stevenson is, apart from being a candidate, the father of three sons, one of whom is in the armed forces. Like any other father, he is, I am sure, willing that his sons should do their part in the defense of their country, but he would not like to see their years wasted. What has the prolonged truce in Korea, during which the Communists have built their strength on land and in the air, to do with the defense of the United States? And why should we be patient about the frittering away of valuable time in obvious futility?

Here is a problem that requires an honest statement of facts. The Wedemeyer Report, made in 1947 and suppressed for two years, forewarned our government that the Korean situation was in the making. Yet, this report was hidden; Wedemeyer was reduced in activity so that he finally retired from the army; nothing was done to avert the war which has lasted 27 months, cost us 120,000 casualties, including nearly 21,000 dead.

There is nothing funny about that, nor is it anything about which we need "resolute patience." Actually what is required is fixed responsibility for the errors and the deaths. We tried Germans at Nuremberg and Japanese at Tokyo who had obeyed the orders of their superiors, but we are asked to glorify those who gave the Korean War to our sons.

Further, Stevenson said:

"It is always necessary to keep clear, however, what our objectives are in the Korean intervention and not to be stampeded into a new set of objectives which might well mean heavier involvement in war in the Far East. . . ."

What were and are our objectives in Korea? Adlai Stevenson does not say. In the recent full debate on the subject in the British Parliament, the impression seemed to be that our objective and the objective of the United Nations was to regain the 38th Parallel and that once that target was reached, victory had been achieved.

I read all the testimony before the Russell Committee dealing with the dismissal of General MacArthur. In all the two million words of that hearing, it is impossible to discover precisely what our objectives in Korea were. If they were to restore the South Korean government, then why are we still fighting there? If they were to regain the 38th Parallel, then why are we still there? And what actually can be accomplished by regaining the 38th Parallel? If our objective was to assert the authority of the United Nations, how is that being accomplished by what Governor Stevenson calls the stalling and double-dealing prolonged truce talks at Panmunjom?

It would be valuable if both candidates discussed the Korean question in detail, with emphasis on American objectives and with some regard for the future. It would raise the level of the current debate if emphasis were placed on an honest attempt to appraise this outstanding disaster in our history.

Thus far, both candidates have sied away from the Korean question. Sevenson's references to the subject have followed the Marshall-Acheson line, which General Eisenhower finds it difficult to attack because of his former position in the army and his personal relations with General George Marshall. But the American people, those who accept the administration's position and those who have opposed it, have expected that this subject would be discussed with serious regard to detail in this campaign. It is their only chance to have it reviewed and debated.

Perhaps the best reason why this subject should be debated was given by Governor Stevenson himself in this same interview in "U. S. News and World Report" when he said:

"I am opposed to the admission of Red China into the United Nations. I do not see why this government should enlarge the sphere of operation of any other government which has waged, and is waging, war against it and against the United Nations in defiance of all that the United Nations stands for. . . ."

Quite so. Therefore, let us discuss Korea.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

EVERY DOCTOR SHOULD BE HOSPITALIZED

Some years ago, on a cold morning, my car would not start as I was leaving one of our veterans' hospitals; something was wrong with the self-starter. As I cranked the car, my hand slipped and I ripped the end of my thumb. I decided to return to the hospital and have one of the doctors stitch the wound. The doctor asked me if I wanted a local anaesthetic and I said, "No, I guess I'll get along without it." As he put in the few stitches necessary, I was sorry I hadn't let him use the local anaesthetic as the pain was much more than I expected, but fortunately was not unbearable.

My first thought was of all the football, hockey players, boxers and wrestlers I had stitched up, often without a local anaesthetic, with little or no thought of the pain I was causing. I thought of it again recently when I read an article in The Canadian Doctor, "Every Doctor Should Be Hospitalized," with the sub-heading, "Experiencing what his patients go through should be part of his professional training." Also this hospitalization should occur for a week every few years. Every physician would thus be a better practitioner of the medical and surgical art and might re-evalute patients' complaints and problems in a better light.

"Doctors are human, too, and just as frail as the next fellow (I found that out) and a little practical hospital experience would improve their attention to kindness, consideration and sympathy."

On the other hand, in these days when all physicians have more work than they can do, without enough time to examine properly their patient, seeing as many as 8 to 10 patients or more within one hour, it can be understood why they appear to lack interest and sympathy in cases when the ailment is not dangerous, though the patient is greatly upset and fears the worst.

The article then describes the various steps of the routine in a modern hospital, from the ambulance ride, admitting ceremonies, the arrival of the "white brigade" from the first year student nurse with glass of water, meal times with the clattering portable kitchen and the nurse with considerable gusto delivering a tray of soft soup, two crackers and tea. Then the long hours till night and, after a rest obtained by a sedative, morning arrives and the parade of nurses, technicians, physicians, consultants, colleagues and visiting family and friends. He must listen attentively to each arrival which keeps his mind and body in a tensed condition and tenseness tires one rapidly.

Doctors, in fact, all of us, need to be hospitalized from time to time to acquire sympathy and proper consideration for the other fellow.

The Fork in the Road

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Governor Stevenson complained recently about a one-party press and the fact that 75 per cent of the newspapers are against the Democrats. Unquestionably he has a point there, and to some extent I may have been partly responsible for lopsided newspaper coverage.

When, over a period of years, a column has unearthed the extra-curricular activities of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the events which helped send John Maragon to jail, the income-tax finagling of internal revenue official Dan Bolich, the Egyptian cotton leaks which led to the indictment of Clovis Walker, etc., naturally it accumulates into a big stockpile of political ammunition.

However, this is not only a reporter's job but it so happens that my score-sheet contains quite a few Republicans, such as the kickbacks that resulted in jail sentences for Congressmen Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and Walter Brehm of Ohio; also the lobbying of Sen. Owen Brewster which led to his defeat; the $10,000 Lustron fee of Senator McCarthy and the tax finagling of Senate Republican leader Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Covering the news consists not only of reporting what goes on from day to day, but digging up the things below the surface which some people don't want dug up but which the public has a right to know about.

In fulfilling this reporter's obligation, however, I personally shall do my best to be fair to both sides, and do equal digging regarding both parties and candidates.

Ike's Taxes

To this end, here is the result of some digging in the Stevenson entourage which shows one of his men was something of an influence peddler; also the answer to questions asked by a great many readers regarding General Eisenhower's possible use of influence in paying only a captal-gains tax on his book, "Crusade in Europe."

The man on Stevenson's staff who sold influence is Neal Roach, assistant treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and now organizer of train and airplane schedules for the Stevenson campaign. He received a fee of $1,000 from the Builders' Control Service of Los Angeles in 1950 for getting a ruling changed by the Veterans Administration permitting the Builders Control Service to charge a 1½ per cent fee for securing and administering loans on housing projects.

There was nothing illegal about this, but unquestionably influence was used.

The facts regarding General Eisenhower's taxes are that he was paid $1,000,000 for his book, written after his return from Europe. Ordinarily he would have paid taxes of around 77 per cent on this income, leaving him a profit (after taxes) of around $230,000.

Instead, he paid a capital-gains tax of 25 per cent, leaving him a profit of $750,000.

The general secured this highly beneficial tax ruling perfectly legally, but a certain amount of influence probably entered the picture.

The 'Eisenhower Amendment'

The general called personally on Charles Oliphant, who later resigned under fire as a result of income-tax exposes by this columnist and the King Committee. Ike argued to Oliphant that he was not a writer, but a soldier, therefore the sale of his writings was the sale of a capital investment, the investment of his own experiences.

Oliphant, who had rolled out the red carpet at the treasury, took advantage of a tax loophole to give General Eisenhower a prompt ruling in the affirmative.

The most interesting thing is that Congress later moved to prevent anyone else from getting such a ruling by passing what was dubbed "The Eisenhower Amendment" to the 1950 tax law.

As a result, Gen. Omar Bradley, who wrote his memoirs last year, also made a lot of money. But he had to pay most of it to Uncle Sam in taxes.

The "Eisenhower Amendment" to the 1950 tax law specifically provides that a person selling a book or other artistic work must be taxed the full rate, rather than the bargain, 25 per cent, capital-gains rate.

Stevenson Henchmen

The influence used by Neal Roach was when he served as a paid employe of the Democratic National Committee in Washington and used that position to write a letter to the Veterans Administration to get it to change a ruling by which the Builders' Control Service could not charge a commission of 1½ per cent for securing loans on housing projects.

Builders' Control Service functioned in connection with several big housing projects, one of them at Victorville, Calif. It secured loans for these projects, and paid out the money on behalf of the bank or owner to the contractor as the work progressed. Both the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration ruled that this commission could not be charged to the cost of the project.

However, when Russell N. Anderson of the Builders' Control Service was introduced to Neal Roach at Democratic headquarters in Washington, Roach wrote a letter to the Veterans Administration and thereafter the commission was OK'd.

Later Roach stopped in to see Anderson in Los Angeles and collected $1,000 from him in cash.

Roach came to Washington originally as the protege of Ed Pauley, big California oilman. He remained on under Chairman William Boyle and under his successor Frank McKinney. At Chicago recently he helped make arrangements for the Democratic convention and is now on Governor Stevenson's campaign staff.

But apart from that, he had a deeper influence upon our life than most men. For the first time in the history of mankind, he conceived and introduced the Law of General Conscription which made every man a soldier according to his age. This law, passed by France in 1790, was soon introduced in all other European continental states, making possible the new warfare with armies of millions instead of the thousands which were customary before. Even the United States and England had to accept conscription as a result of the World War 1.

Today in Washington

Political Facts of Life Are Being Learned by American Public

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 22 — The American people are beginning to learn the facts of life—that is political life.

The public controversy over the trust fund disbursed by supporters of Senator Nixon of California is perhaps the most healthful development in the history of American politics.

If it leads to a revision of existing laws governing campaign contributions it will be the most constructive influence exerted in that direction in recent years. For here is what American political parties—both of them—do today:

1. Campaign contributions are accepted before and after elections from executives of corporations and from individual executives in labor unions because corporations and labor unions themselves are not permitted to contribute.

2. When a national campaign is over, usually there is a debt. In 1948 there was a debt and contributions were received by the Democratic national committee after election from several individuals whose businesses are subject to regulation by the government and in some instances have been under scrutiny as to possible anti-trust violations.

3. Prior to the time labor union contributions were prohibited by law, a loan of $500,000 was made to President Roosevelt's 1936 campaign by a political league composed of labor union leaders who borrowed labor union funds for the purpose. Sidney Hillman and John L. Lewis were at the head of that league. This is probably the largest single financial "contribution" ever made to a political party. The Federal Corrupt Practices law at that time and since has defined a "political contribution" as a "subscription, gift, loan, etc." The word "loan" has always been in the law. The "loan" was reported in the proper way after election. Nobody ever called for the resignation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt for accepting such a loan which later rose to plague him and he got the loan paid off by further contributions from other sources.

4. The late John J. Raskob, prominent in General Motors and the duPont Company, personally financed a large part of the 1928 Democratic campaign of Al Smith and also the 1932 Democratic campaign of Franklin D. Roosevelt with gifts and loans totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

5. Many members of the Senate and House including the vice president, accept fees for speaking engagements as well as travel expenses from organizations which have legislation pending in Congress. Some of these fees are far in excess of normal fees on the lecture tours of other prominent men.

6. Many members of the Senate and House regularly receive fees from private law partnerships while they are serving in Congress and though the revenue is not derived from cases involving claims against the Federal government, many of the members participate in cases in state and local courts. Some members do local work regularly for certain labor unions and some do it for certain corporations. In either event, it is supplemental income of considerable size.

7. Many members of the state legislatures are in the direct pay of either labor unions or corporations—so much so that the American Federation of Labor a few years ago offered publicly to supplement the salaries of members of state legislatures because so many of them derived income from corporations opposed to labor's interests.

8. Some members of congress have speaking engagements thrown their way by government departments who know their sympathies on certain public policies on which speeches are sought by private organizations.

9. When the Democratic national chairman, Stephen Mitchell, was quoted the other day as saying no man should go to Congress who couldn't afford to pay his own expenses, he was saying in effect that only millionaires should be elected. There are several millionaires in both parties in the Senate and they pay large sums annually for expenses incurred by them for causes in which they are interested.

None of the foregoing set of circumstances involves any violation of federal law. Nor is it considered morally wrong according to our present day political code. If, as Senator Nixon asserts, the fund was used solely for public purposes and not a cent was received by him or disbursed by the trustee of the fund for any personal purpose in behalf of the senator, then he has violated no law and no political code of today.

But this is not saying any of the items enumerated above should be condoned. Legislation to prohibit campaign contributions either before or after elections is very much in order. Already corporations and labor unions are forbidden to contribute to campaigns but individuals should likewise be prohibited from making any campaign contributions. The Federal government should appropriate a limited sum of money for the campaigns of all parties and for all candidates for election to the Senate and House, giving due regard to states with larger voting populations than others. The primary campaigns should be financed by the state governments.

Only in this way can American public servants be spared the embarrassment of a campaign obligation. Only in this way can presidents be kept from appointing as ambassadors or ministers abroad or high officials at home persons who have contributed or whose families have contributed relatively large sums for campaign purposes. Republican and Democratic presidents have made such appointments. Then and then only will American politics be cleaned up as it should have been long ago.

Now whether or not Senator Nixon should withdraw or whether General Eisenhower should let him withdraw if he offers to do so, is a problem of this particular campaign, and its strategy. But if the California senator is condemned, everybody else in Congress who has received income or campaign contributions either before or after elections from outside sources—that is from individuals or businesses with legislation before Congress — should disqualify themselves from ever voting on such issues in Congress. And this will never be done. So it would seem tragic to single out Nixon and condemn him for doing what is considered proper in both parties by most of Congress.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

This will tie up the loose ends of the matter of Arthur Hays Sulzberger's journey to Moscow during the war attended by James Reston. Sulzberger is the publisher of the New York Times. Reston is a correspondent on the Washington staff of the Times. Admiral William Harrison Standley, who was the American ambassador in Moscow at the time, wrote in his memoirs and told me verbally that Sulzberger went as a directo of the International Red Cross and that Reston was represented as his secretary.

Sulzberger has accused me of writing some "errors" but when I closed in on him for a bill of particulars he took evasive action.

Standley wrote in his memoirs that Roosevelt cabled him: "'Mr. Arthur Sulzberger of the New York Times is a director of the International Red Cross. He desires to visit the Soviet Union in the interest of the society. It is requested that you obtain the necessary permission and visas.'"

You may note that the admiral says he is quoting literally from a message from Roosevelt.

Roosevelt had barred Roy Howard from all fronts and war zones on the ground that he was a publisher and had his fair share of representation in his staff reporters. Actually, Roosevelt was running a strafe on Howard, but even so Howard was offered a chance to make a trip if he would pretend to be a Red Cross observer of some kind. Roy did not go into the particulars because this struck him as a proposal to abuse the Red Cross. The enemy might seize on such a subterfuge to repudiate the Geneva convention, with terrible consequences to prisoners of war and civilians in occupied zones. Howard spurned the proposition.

Standley took up Roosevelt's request with the Soviet Foreign Office and Stalin wanted to know whether Sulzberger was coming solely in the interests of the Red Cross, "or as an editor and newspaperman." He replied that he was sure Sulzberger was not coming as a newspaperman.

"This did not satisfy Stalin," Standley continued, "who came back promptly with a request that I get assurance from Roosevelt himself. This was promptly forthcoming and just as promptly were the permission granted and the visas issued."

Standley wrote that he invited Sulzberger to be his guest at the embassy and that Sulzberger, in accepting, asked whether Standley could accommodate his secretary, too.

"Rather to my astonishment," the admiral wrote, "when Sulzberger's secretary appeared he was no other than Mr. Jimmy Reston, the New York Times' most experienced reporter. I am sure the Russians considered that they had been duped."

He wrote further that when he came home, Roosevelt told him that Sulzberger had said he desired to go to Russia in any capacity.

"And so, says the admiral, "he came as a director of the Red Cross."

Pursuing the facts I asked Mr. Sulzberger for a copy of this report to the International R. C. or any other report to any other department of the R. C. in reply, Sulzberger said:

"Although at present I am a member of the board of governors of the American Red Cross, it is their responsibility rather than mine (even though I was picked out by you for special reference) to make a statement, if any, correcting some of the errors in the

True humility is the expression of strength which has explored and recognized its limits. Without real humility strength is merely force and its fruits are vanity, arrogance and eventually an unconsolable bitterness at failure.

Two miners struggled to move a heavy rock and their muscles strained to the task, the sweat pouring from their faces. It became apparent that they could not move it, so they called another man to help them. With his aid the rock was easily moved. Calling the third man after they had determined that it was not a two-man job was the logical, intelligent way to meet the problem. Had they called him before they made sure he was needed they would have been lazy, dishonest and unfair. They might also have lost the respect of the man who helped.

Calling on power greater than our own when we meet problems of the spirit is not an admission of weakness. It is rather an affirmation of faith that there is a Divine hand ready to help when the burden becomes too heavy for our own strength. The help that comes brings with it dignity for it is a statement that man can be the instrument through which Divine power flows and is applied.

Yet without our own greatest effort to meet our own need help from God will not come. And without an admission that our own strength is limited we cannot truly turn our faces toward heaven with any hope of answer.

The fellow content to cruise along day by day avoiding any exertion must be finding the going difficult—it is getting harder and harder not to get a job.

USING CHIANG'S TROOPS

A few months ago the suggestion was often heard that we were overlooking something in not turning Chiang Kai-shek's troops, now on Formosa, loose on the mainland against the Communists. Their number was sometimes put as high as 700,000, and we were told that they were aching to fight.

This cry will probably be heard less frequently now that General Eisenhower has definitely pronounced against it. Asked in Chicago if he would use "the several hundred thousand Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa," he said that not that many troops were there, and that the problem in Korea was not primarily one of manpower. He seemed to think that all that could be expected of Chiang's men would be for them to hold their present positions.

His reluctance to call in whatever number of Nationalists are available may conceal a feeling that we would be held responsible if we summoned them to help us, and they then got into difficulties.

Ceiling prices on cigars have been lifted. We hope the time never comes when some one will suggest that what this country needs is a good five dollar cigar.

PARKING PLACE PICKLE

Business is the worst victim of any town's parking problem. The automobile has become as necessary to American family life as the telephone, radio, daily newspaper or washing machine. More and more people use their cars for every small errand. They won't walk unless forced to—and then they will complain. Coming into town from the country on Friday night entails parking confusion. As the town's population increases for a few hours of one evening in the week, parking headaches multiply.

People will avoid business districts in which parking is a major question and business enterprises situated in such districts will take a heavy loss in sales. Seeking solutions to these problems, the United States Chamber of Commerce has published a series of five pamphlets on the subject. They have also organized another series of "parking clinics." The first of these was held at Anderson, Indiana. Others are scheduled.

A workable solution may be realized from these meetings and some good assistance may come from the pamphlets. The gradual down-grade of local business activities, because of lack of parking facilities, is depressing. The only answer is off-street parking to relieve traffic congestion. This is a problem which will have to be worked out on local levels all over the nation.

'These Days'

TALK IS EASY

Adlai Stevenson, in reply to a question about Korea, said:

"I hope that public opinion, without reference to the period of the campaign or any other event, will continue to maintain the resolute patience and wisdom about the Korean problem which it has exhibited in the main thus far. . . ."

That kind of talk is easy and inconclusive. Adlai Stevenson is, apart from being a candidate, the father of three sons, one of whom is in the armed forces. Like any other father, he is, I am sure, willing that his sons should do their part in the defense of their country, but he would not like to see their years wasted. What has the prolonged truce in Korea, during which the Communists have built their strength on land and in the air, to do with the defense of the United States? And why should we be patient about the frittering away of valuable time in obvious futility?

Here is a problem that requires an honest statement of facts. The Wedemeyer Report, made in 1947 and suppressed for two years, forewarned our government that the Korean situation was in the making. Yet, this report was hidden; Wedemeyer was reduced in activity so that he finally retired from the army; nothing was done to avert the war which has lasted 27 months, cost us 120,000 casualties, including nearly 21,000 dead.

There is nothing funny about that, nor is it anything about which we need "resolute patience." Actually what is required is fixed responsibility for the errors and the deaths. We tried Germans at Nuremberg and Japanese at Tokyo who had obeyed the orders of their superiors, but we are asked to glorify those who gave the Korean War to our sons.

Further, Stevenson said:

"It is always necessary to keep clear, however, what our objectives are in the Korean intervention and not to be stampeded into a new set of objectives which might well mean heavier involvement in war in the Far East. . . ."

What were and are our objectives in Korea? Adlai Stevenson does not say. In the recent full debate on the subject in the British Parliament, the impression seemed to be that our objective and the objective of the United Nations was to regain the 38th Parallel and that once that target was reached, victory had been achieved.

I read all the testimony before the Russell Committee dealing with the dismissal of General MacArthur. In all the two million words of that hearing, it is impossible to discover precisely what our objectives in Korea were. If they were to restore the South Korean government, then why are we still fighting there? If they were to regain the 38th Parallel, then why are we still there? And what actually can be accomplished by regaining the 38th Parallel? If our objective was to assert the authority of the United Nations, how is that being accomplished by what Governor Stevenson calls the stalling and double-dealing prolonged truce talks at Panmunjom?

It would be valuable if both candidates discussed the Korean question in detail, with emphasis on American objectives and with some regard for the future. It would raise the level of the current debate if emphasis were placed on an honest attempt to appraise this outstanding disaster in our history.

Thus far, both candidates have sied away from the Korean question. Sevenson's references to the subject have followed the Marshall-Acheson line, which General Eisenhower finds it difficult to attack because of his former position in the army and his personal relations with General George Marshall. But the American people, those who accept the administration's position and those who have opposed it, have expected that this subject would be discussed with serious regard to detail in this campaign. It is their only chance to have it reviewed and debated.

Perhaps the best reason why this subject should be debated was given by Governor Stevenson himself in this same interview in "U. S. News and World Report" when he said:

"I am opposed to the admission of Red China into the United Nations. I do not see why this government should enlarge the sphere of operation of any other government which has waged, and is waging, war against it and against the United Nations in defiance of all that the United Nations stands for. . . ."

Quite so. Therefore, let us discuss Korea.

That Body of Yours

EVERY DOCTOR SHOULD BE HOSPITALIZED

Some years ago, on a cold morning, my car would not start as I was leaving one of our veterans' hospitals; something was wrong with the self-starter. As I cranked the car, my hand slipped and I ripped the end of my thumb. I decided to return to the hospital and have one of the doctors stitch the wound. The doctor asked me if I wanted a local anaesthetic and I said, "No, I guess I'll get along without it." As he put in the few stitches necessary, I was sorry I hadn't let him use the local anaesthetic as the pain was much more than I expected, but fortunately was not unbearable.

My first thought was of all the football, hockey players, boxers and wrestlers I had stitched up, often without a local anaesthetic, with little or no thought of the pain I was causing. I thought of it again recently when I read an article in The Canadian Doctor, "Every Doctor Should Be Hospitalized," with the sub-heading, "Experiencing what his patients go through should be part of his professional training." Also this hospitalization should occur for a week every few years. Every physician would thus be a better practitioner of the medical and surgical art and might re-evalute patients' complaints and problems in a better light.

"Doctors are human, too, and just as frail as the next fellow (I found that out) and a little practical hospital experience would improve their attention to kindness, consideration and sympathy."

On the other hand, in these days when all physicians have more work than they can do, without enough time to examine properly their patient, seeing as many as 8 to 10 patients or more within one hour, it can be understood why they appear to lack interest and sympathy in cases when the ailment is not dangerous, though the patient is greatly upset and fears the worst.

The article then describes the various steps of the routine in a modern hospital, from the ambulance ride, admitting ceremonies, the arrival of the "white brigade" from the first year student nurse with glass of water, meal times with the clattering portable kitchen and the nurse with considerable gusto delivering a tray of soft soup, two crackers and tea. Then the long hours till night and, after a rest obtained by a sedative, morning arrives and the parade of nurses, technicians, physicians, consultants, colleagues and visiting family and friends. He must listen attentively to each arrival which keeps his mind and body in a tensed condition and tenseness tires one rapidly.

Doctors, in fact, all of us, need to be hospitalized from time to time to acquire sympathy and proper consideration for the other fellow.

The Fork in the Road

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Governor Stevenson complained recently about a one-party press and the fact that 75 per cent of the newspapers are against the Democrats. Unquestionably he has a point there, and to some extent I may have been partly responsible for lopsided newspaper coverage.

When, over a period of years, a column has unearthed the extra-curricular activities of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the events which helped send John Maragon to jail, the income-tax finagling of internal revenue official Dan Bolich, the Egyptian cotton leaks which led to the indictment of Clovis Walker, etc., naturally it accumulates into a big stockpile of political ammunition.

However, this is not only a reporter's job but it so happens that my score-sheet contains quite a few Republicans, such as the kickbacks that resulted in jail sentences for Congressmen Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and Walter Brehm of Ohio; also the lobbying of Sen. Owen Brewster which led to his defeat; the $10,000 Lustron fee of Senator McCarthy and the tax finagling of Senate Republican leader Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Covering the news consists not only of reporting what goes on from day to day, but digging up the things below the surface which some people don't want dug up but which the public has a right to know about.

In fulfilling this reporter's obligation, however, I personally shall do my best to be fair to both sides, and do equal digging regarding both parties and candidates.

Ike's Taxes

To this end, here is the result of some digging in the Stevenson entourage which shows one of his men was something of an influence peddler; also the answer to questions asked by a great many readers regarding General Eisenhower's possible use of influence in paying only a captal-gains tax on his book, "Crusade in Europe."

The man on Stevenson's staff who sold influence is Neal Roach, assistant treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and now organizer of train and airplane schedules for the Stevenson campaign. He received a fee of $1,000 from the Builders' Control Service of Los Angeles in 1950 for getting a ruling changed by the Veterans Administration permitting the Builders Control Service to charge a 1½ per cent fee for securing and administering loans on housing projects.

There was nothing illegal about this, but unquestionably influence was used.

The facts regarding General Eisenhower's taxes are that he was paid $1,000,000 for his book, written after his return from Europe. Ordinarily he would have paid taxes of around 77 per cent on this income, leaving him a profit (after taxes) of around $230,000.

Instead, he paid a capital-gains tax of 25 per cent, leaving him a profit of $750,000.

The general secured this highly beneficial tax ruling perfectly legally, but a certain amount of influence probably entered the picture.

The 'Eisenhower Amendment'

The general called personally on Charles Oliphant, who later resigned under fire as a result of income-tax exposes by this columnist and the King Committee. Ike argued to Oliphant that he was not a writer, but a soldier, therefore the sale of his writings was the sale of a capital investment, the investment of his own experiences.

Oliphant, who had rolled out the red carpet at the treasury, took advantage of a tax loophole to give General Eisenhower a prompt ruling in the affirmative.

The most interesting thing is that Congress later moved to prevent anyone else from getting such a ruling by passing what was dubbed "The Eisenhower Amendment" to the 1950 tax law.

As a result, Gen. Omar Bradley, who wrote his memoirs last year, also made a lot of money. But he had to pay most of it to Uncle Sam in taxes.

The "Eisenhower Amendment" to the 1950 tax law specifically provides that a person selling a book or other artistic work must be taxed the full rate, rather than the bargain, 25 per cent, capital-gains rate.

Stevenson Henchmen

The influence used by Neal Roach was when he served as a paid employe of the Democratic National Committee in Washington and used that position to write a letter to the Veterans Administration to get it to change a ruling by which the Builders' Control Service could not charge a commission of 1½ per cent for securing loans on housing projects.

Builders' Control Service functioned in connection with several big housing projects, one of them at Victorville, Calif. It secured loans for these projects, and paid out the money on behalf of the bank or owner to the contractor as the work progressed. Both the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration ruled that this commission could not be charged to the cost of the project.

However, when Russell N. Anderson of the Builders' Control Service was introduced to Neal Roach at Democratic headquarters in Washington, Roach wrote a letter to the Veterans Administration and thereafter the commission was OK'd.

Later Roach stopped in to see Anderson in Los Angeles and collected $1,000 from him in cash.

Roach came to Washington originally as the protege of Ed Pauley, big California oilman. He remained on under Chairman William Boyle and under his successor Frank McKinney. At Chicago recently he helped make arrangements for the Democratic convention and is now on Governor Stevenson's campaign staff.

The Father of the Draft

Jean-Baptiste Jourdan (1762-1833), marshal of France and Peer of the Empire, resigned his commission as commander in chief three times to return to his original vocation as a drygoods merchant. But apart from that, he had a deeper influence upon our life than most men. For the first time in the history of mankind, he conceived and introduced the Law of General Conscription which made every man a soldier according to his age. This law, passed by France in 1790, was soon introduced in all other European continental states, making possible the new warfare with armies of millions instead of the thousands which were customary before. Even the United States and England had to accept conscription as a result of the World War 1.

Political Facts of Life Are Being Learned by American Public

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 22 — The American people are beginning to learn the facts of life—that is political life.

The public controversy over the trust fund disbursed by supporters of Senator Nixon of California is perhaps the most healthful development in the history of American politics.

If it leads to a revision of existing laws governing campaign contributions it will be the most constructive influence exerted in that direction in recent years. For here is what American political parties—both of them—do today:

1. Campaign contributions are accepted before and after elections from executives of corporations and from individual executives in labor unions because corporations and labor unions themselves are not permitted to contribute.

2. When a national campaign is over, usually there is a debt. In 1948 there was a debt and contributions were received by the Democratic national committee after election from several individuals whose businesses are subject to regulation by the government and in some instances have been under scrutiny as to possible anti-trust violations.

3. Prior to the time labor union contributions were prohibited by law, a loan of $500,000 was made to President Roosevelt's 1936 campaign by a political league composed of labor union leaders who borrowed labor union funds for the purpose. Sidney Hillman and John L. Lewis were at the head of that league. This is probably the largest single financial "contribution" ever made to a political party. The Federal Corrupt Practices law at that time and since has defined a "political contribution" as a "subscription, gift, loan, etc." The word "loan" has always been in the law. The "loan" was reported in the proper way after election. Nobody ever called for the resignation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt for accepting such a loan which later rose to plague him and he got the loan paid off by further contributions from other sources.

4. The late John J. Raskob, prominent in General Motors and the duPont Company, personally financed a large part of the 1928 Democratic campaign of Al Smith and also the 1932 Democratic campaign of Franklin D. Roosevelt with gifts and loans totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

5. Many members of the Senate and House including the vice president, accept fees for speaking engagements as well as travel expenses from organizations which have legislation pending in Congress. Some of these fees are far in excess of normal fees on the lecture tours of other prominent men.

6. Many members of the Senate and House regularly receive fees from private law partnerships while they are serving in Congress and though the revenue is not derived from cases involving claims against the Federal government, many of the members participate in cases in state and local courts. Some members do local work regularly for certain labor unions and some do it for certain corporations. In either event, it is supplemental income of considerable size.

7. Many members of the state legislatures are in the direct pay of either labor unions or corporations—so much so that the American Federation of Labor a few years ago offered publicly to supplement the salaries of members of state legislatures because so many of them derived income from corporations opposed to labor's interests.

8. Some members of congress have speaking engagements thrown their way by government departments who know their sympathies on certain public policies on which speeches are sought by private organizations.

9. When the Democratic national chairman, Stephen Mitchell, was quoted the other day as saying no man should go to Congress who couldn't afford to pay his own expenses, he was saying in effect that only millionaires should be elected. There are several millionaires in both parties in the Senate and they pay large sums annually for expenses incurred by them for causes in which they are interested.

None of the foregoing set of circumstances involves any violation of federal law. Nor is it considered morally wrong according to our present day political code. If, as Senator Nixon asserts, the fund was used solely for public purposes and not a cent was received by him or disbursed by the trustee of the fund for any personal purpose in behalf of the senator, then he has violated no law and no political code of today.

But this is not saying any of the items enumerated above should be condoned. Legislation to prohibit campaign contributions either before or after elections is very much in order. Already corporations and labor unions are forbidden to contribute to campaigns but individuals should likewise be prohibited from making any campaign contributions. The Federal government should appropriate a limited sum of money for the campaigns of all parties and for all candidates for election to the Senate and House, giving due regard to states with larger voting populations than others. The primary campaigns should be financed by the state governments.

Only in this way can American public servants be spared the embarrassment of a campaign obligation. Only in this way can presidents be kept from appointing as ambassadors or ministers abroad or high officials at home persons who have contributed or whose families have contributed relatively large sums for campaign purposes. Republican and Democratic presidents have made such appointments. Then and then only will American politics be cleaned up as it should have been long ago.

Now whether or not Senator Nixon should withdraw or whether General Eisenhower should let him withdraw if he offers to do so, is a problem of this particular campaign, and its strategy. But if the California senator is condemned, everybody else in Congress who has received income or campaign contributions either before or after elections from outside sources—that is from individuals or businesses with legislation before Congress — should disqualify themselves from ever voting on such issues in Congress. And this will never be done. So it would seem tragic to single out Nixon and condemn him for doing what is considered proper in both parties by most of Congress.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

This will tie up the loose ends of the matter of Arthur Hays Sulzberger's journey to Moscow during the war attended by James Reston. Sulzberger is the publisher of the New York Times. Reston is a correspondent on the Washington staff of the Times. Admiral William Harrison Standley, who was the American ambassador in Moscow at the time, wrote in his memoirs and told me verbally that Sulzberger went as a directo of the International Red Cross and that Reston was represented as his secretary.

Sulzberger has accused me of writing some "errors" but when I closed in on him for a bill of particulars he took evasive action.

Standley wrote in his memoirs that Roosevelt cabled him: "'Mr. Arthur Sulzberger of the New York Times is a director of the International Red Cross. He desires to visit the Soviet Union in the interest of the society. It is requested that you obtain the necessary permission and visas.'"

You may note that the admiral says he is quoting literally from a message from Roosevelt.

Roosevelt had barred Roy Howard from all fronts and war zones on the ground that he was a publisher and had his fair share of representation in his staff reporters. Actually, Roosevelt was running a strafe on Howard, but even so Howard was offered a chance to make a trip if he would pretend to be a Red Cross observer of some kind. Roy did not go into the particulars because this struck him as a proposal to abuse the Red Cross. The enemy might seize on such a subterfuge to repudiate the Geneva convention, with terrible consequences to prisoners of war and civilians in occupied zones. Howard spurned the proposition.

Standley took up Roosevelt's request with the Soviet Foreign Office and Stalin wanted to know whether Sulzberger was coming solely in the interests of the Red Cross, "or as an editor and newspapermah." He replied that he was sure Sulzberger was not coming as a newspaperman.

"This did not satisfy Stalin," Standley continued, "who came back promptly with a request that I get assurance from Roosevelt himself. This was promptly forthcoming and just as promptly were the permission granted and the visas issued."

Standley wrote that he invited Sulzberger to be his guest at the embassy and that Sulzberger, in accepting, asked whether Standley could accommodate his secretary, too.

"Rather to my astonishment," the admiral wrote, "when Sulzberger's secretary appeared he was no other than Mr. Jimmy Reston, the New York Times' most experienced reporter. I am sure the Russians considered that they had been duped."

He wrote further that when he came home, Roosevelt told him that Sulzberger had said he desired to go to Russia in any capacity.

"And so, says the admiral, "he came as a director of the Red Cross."

Pursuing the facts I asked Mr. Sulzberger for a copy of this report to the International R. C. or any other report to any other department of the R. C. in reply, Sulzberger said:

"Although at present I am a member of the board of governors of the American Red Cross, it is their responsibility rather than mine (even though I was picked out by you for special reference) to make a statement, if any, correcting some of the errors in the

Newspapers Start New Nationwide Promotion Drive

Newspapers throughout the country will carry forward for a second year the advertising campaign in their own columns promoting the newspaper as a news and advertising medium.

Some 875 newspapers, representing a daily circulation of more than 40,000,000, carried the 1951-52 campaign, it was announced by Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler of the New York Times, who has been reappointed chairman of the Special Advertising Campaign committee. Value of the space given to the campaign in the past year, he said, is estimated at more than $1,500,000. Response thus far to announcement of the new drive indicates it will have equally strong support, he added.

Ads will continue to run at least once a month. First ad in the new series is scheduled for October. The slogan of last year's drive, "The newspaper is always 'first with the most,'" is being continued. And, as last year, the basic theme is that the newspaper brings you the whole story, fast.

The 1952-53 series will be given continuity by the repeated use of the headline, "This is a picture—but not the full story!", together with a provocative news photo. Proofs of the first ad were sent this week to newspapers participating in the campaign. The attention-catching picture shows a group of huddled figures lying on the floor along the walls of a long hall.

"Until you read these words," says the copy, "you might not guess that this is a school corridor during a recent air-raid drill. Until you read further you might not realize that this is only one brief moment, one small aspect, of a much bigger story. . . . If pictures or headlines or flash announcements could adequately tell you what you want to know, you would not read newspapers. As it is, just about everybody reads newspapers every day.

". . . Only the newspaper can bring you the full story as soon as your appetite is aroused. Fast, without delay. This goes for advertising, too. . . . The newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself. . . ."

All ads in the new series, like those of last year, will be prepared by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Three other newspaper organizations are adding momentum to the drive by urging their members to participate. They are the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association, the American Association of Newspaper Representatives and the National Newspaper Promotion Association.

Mats of the ads, provided by the bureau at cost, will again be supplied in three sizes—full standard-size page, 1,000 lines and 600 lines. Many of the newspapers carrying the ads, Gen. Adler pointed out, have run them in all three sizes or in two sizes, often using them several times during the month.

In a letter to newspapers announcing continuation of the concerted drive, Gen. Adler termed it "one of the greatest single cooperative efforts that newspapers have ever launched for themselves.

"For the first time on a nationwide, coordinated basis," he said, "newspapers have sold newspapers as an advertising medium through the most powerful promotional medium available—their own columns."

Objective of the campaign, as outlined by the committee, is "to stimulate enthusiasm for the newspaper as the number one, basic advertising medium" among "all people" who ultimately influence media selection.

The audience, according to the committee, includes retailers and chain store buyers, as influences on the manufacturer; retailers as advertisers; local sales representatives of advertisers, such as wholesalers, salesmen, divisional mangers, etc.; associates of these influential people in all walks of life; and, finally, all consumers, as a constant reminder to them that "the newspaper is the No. 1 place to learn what's on sale, so that they turn to the newspaper ads more and strengthen the newspaper still further as a selling medium."

It might cost as much as $500,000 a mile to reproduce an ancient Roman road, if were hand built as the Romans built it.

articles. I did not make any report to the International Red Cross and was never associated with it. During World War II I was a member of the central committee of the American Red Cross. On my return from Moscow in 1943 I made an oral report to that committee.

"I wore two hats on that trip, one of which was that of the American Red Cross on which I worked industriously. However there was no doubt in the mind of anyone who assented to my trip that I was the publisher of the New York Times and represented it, nor did anyone believe that Scotty Reston was my secretary as you suggested."

I then asked Sulzberger to specify my "errors."

"Inasmuch as you made a long trip, presumably at great expense, and made a report to the 'central committee of the American Red Cross' in 1943, I think that report should have been in writing, not oral," I wrote him. "Don't you think this sort of report makes your mission seem casual and secondary to your mission as publisher? Will you please state whether you did ask Standley for accommodations for your secretary and whether he states truly in saying you brought Reston in as your secretary? Would you have been allowed to go to Russia only as publisher of the New York Times?"

Mr. Sulzberger did not answer any of my questions. His reply was this: "I have no desire to enter into any argument with my friend, Admiral Standley. I have not been privileged to read what he wrote, nor would I wish to challenge the accuracy of it if I had."

Admiral Standley and the Rev. Leopold Braun, the American priest who spent 13 years in Moscow, both wrote of frightful extravagance, negligence, and corruption in the distribution by the Russian government of American R.C. and American relief supplies in Russia, almost none of which ever reached any of the ragged, famishing wretches for whom it was intended by the American people.

It is my comment that an oral report on this situation by Mr. Sulzberger was insufficient. I still await particulars of the alleged errors. I note a resemblance to the Times' smear-campaign against Joe McCarthy accusing him of indulging in wild charges but never specifying which charges were "wild."

As Pegler Sees It

articles. I did not make any report to the International Red Cross and was never associated with it. During World War II I was a member of the central committee of the American Red Cross. On my return from Moscow in 1943 I made an oral report to that committee.

"I wore two hats on that trip, one of which was that of the American Red Cross on which I worked industriously. However there was no doubt in the mind of anyone who assented to my trip that I was the publisher of the New York Times and represented it, nor did anyone believe that Scotty Reston was my secretary as you suggested."

I then asked Sulzberger to specify my "errors."

"Inasmuch as you made a long trip, presumably at great expense, and made a report to the 'central committee of the American Red Cross' in 1943, I think that report should have been in writing, not oral," I wrote him. "Don't you think this sort of report makes your mission seem casual and secondary to your mission as publisher? Will you please state whether you did ask Standley for accommodations for your secretary and whether he states truly in saying you brought Reston in as your secretary? Would you have been allowed to go to Russia only as publisher of the New York Times?"

Mr. Sulzberger did not answer any of my questions. His reply was this: "I have no desire to enter into any argument with my friend, Admiral Standley. I have not been privileged to read what he wrote, nor would I wish to challenge the accuracy of it if I had."

Admiral Standley and the Rev. Leopold Braun, the American priest who spent 13 years in Moscow, both wrote of frightful extravagance, negligence, and corruption in the distribution by the Russian government of American R.C. and American relief supplies in Russia, almost none of which ever reached any of the ragged, famishing wretches for whom it was intended by the American people.

It is my comment that an oral report on this situation by Mr. Sulzberger was insufficient. I still await particulars of the alleged errors. I note a resemblance to the Times' smear-campaign against Joe McCarthy accusing him of indulging in wild charges but never specifying which charges were "wild."

High School Battles Mont Pleasant to 6-6 Tie in Seasonal Opener

Giles Returns Punt 63 Yards for Score

Coach Bill Burke counted his blessings after his "All-Junior" Kingston High School football squad had battled mighty Mont Pleasant of Schenectady to a 6-6 standstill Saturday night before 2,000 spectators at municipal stadium.

"A little more speed in the backfield and a tightening of the defensive flanks and we will do all right." he said. "And we got some tough breaks on penalties when they really hurt.

Burke had watched his fighting juniors stave off two big thrusts by the highly favored Red Raiders in the second half after a spectacular 63-yard punt return by Orville Giles in the second period sent the teams into the halftime respite tied at 6-6.

Mont Pleasant was pounding on the Kingston 13-yard line after an uninterupted march of 62 yards when the game ended but still Burke was pleased with what he saw.

Like the couple thousand in the park he saw Mont Pleasant's brilliant successor to Walter Jablonski, a swivel-hipped scooter named Dominick Giagiacomo travel 65 yards after eight minutes of the first period to put the Raiders ahead 6-0. The try for extra point by rushing failed.

Like the others, the Maroon mentor realized what a tremendous tackle this young Bob Engle can develop into before long. Engle was all over the field with bone-jarring tackles in one of the finest one-man defensive shows in years.

That Giagiacomo was summarily expelled from the game for slugging a Kingston player and sassing the referee was not overlooked as a vital factor in the 6-6 deadlock. Besides the touchdown, Giagiacomo reeled off a 30-yard run and was a threat to go all the way every time he got his hands on the ball.

Giagiacomo first swept around end for 15 yards from the Mont Pleasant 20 and then went all the way on a burst through the left side of his line. He broke into the clear near the Kingston 30 and was all by himself the rest of the way.

Giles Goes 63

Giles electrified the Kingston rooters by taking a punt on the Kingston 37 and racing 63 yards on a spectacular twisting run in which he reversed the field and outdistanced the Red Raider secondary.

The Maroons rallied around Giles with brilliant blocking. There were at least three key blocks on the play, with Giles cutting to the right sideline and then reversing his field. He swung back toward midfield and went straight down the field while Kingston blockers bowled Red Raiders over like tenpins.

Carmen Massa's placement try for the extra point failed to create a 6-6 deadlock and that's where it finished.

Fumbles Hurt

Mont Pleasant threatened twice in the second half but was balked by a fumble the first time and the clock the second.

Chuck Gerding, the right tackle recovered a Kingston fumble on the Maroon 33. Four slams at the line ground out a first down on the Kingston 19. Both sides were offside on the next play but Menia fumbled on the Kingston 18 and Massa recovered.

Mickey Shannon, Giagiacomo's replacement turned in some nifty running late in the fourth period when a promising Kingston advance halted on the MP 25. Shannon and Ronnie Salvatore alternated for three quick first downs to the Kingston 25. MP completed its only pass in three attempts when Dominick Scarlotta hit Jimmy Niland on the Kingston 13. Salvatore failed to gain in a smash at center and the game ended before the next play could unfold.

Kingston moved from its 32 to the MP 25 just before that. Orville Giles gained a yard on a pitchout and had the wind knocked out of him on the play but recovered and continued in the game. Pat Manfro and Carmen Massa went 20-yards and then 14 on successive tackle thrusts to a first down on the MP 33.

Four shots at the MP line and some confusion in the backfield blocking left Kingston short of a first down on the MP 25. That was Kingston's deepest penetration after the Giles TD run.

The Maroons tried only one pass and it failed. MP made good one out of three for a 12-yard pickup. Statistically, the Red Raiders outgained Kingston, 11 first downs to 7 and picked up 257 yards from scrimmage to 186 for the Burkemen.

Penalties hobbled promising Kingston advances on two occasions and the Maroon were guilty of four 15-yard infractions. Mont Pleasant lost 30 yards on penalties, one a 15-yarder but the didn't hurt like the Maroon violations.

Seixas Moves Up In Tennis Picture

Los Angeles, Sept. 22 (AP)—Because of his stunning straight-set upset victory over Australia's Frank Sedgman yesterday, Captain Vic Seixas of the U. S. Davis Cup team looms today as a major threat in the international tennis picture.

Sexias attributed his 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 triumph in the men's singles finals of the 26th Pacific Southwest tourney to his service. He connected consistently with his first ball, a high, hardtwist which the favored Sedgman, the defending champion, found hard to handle.

It was the first big tournament setback for Sedgman, rated as the world's top amateur, since early last year.

National champion Maureen Connolly of San Diego came through as expected, dropping one set before winning the women's singles crown from Doris Hart, Miami, Fla., 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

Altogether, it was a sad day for the Australians. Besides Sedgman, three other of his countrymen went down to defeat in finals matches.

Two of them, Ken Rosewell and Lewis Hoad, bowed to Herb Flam of Los Angeles and Hugh Stewart of Pasadena, for the men's double diadem. The Yankees came from behind after surviving match point to win—1-6, 9-7, 1-6, 9-7, 6-2.

The fourth Australian, Thelma Long, and teammate Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, Calif., lost the women's doubles crown to Miss Hart and Shirley Fry, Akron, O. The score—6-4, 6-3.

Wiltwycks Blank Dairy, 2-0, to Capture Second Half

PRACTICING PSYCHOLOGIST—Joe Black continues his study of psychology while applying it to the science of pitching. Black, showing the way he grips an unusual curve, has accounted for 25 victories as Brooklyn's best relief pitcher since Hugh Casey. The Morgan State alumnus is a strong candidate for either or both National League awards—rookie-of-the-year and most-valuable player. (NEA)

Digastino Shades Fisher in 4-Hit Duel Between Aces

Finn's Great Catch Save Highland Crew

Wiltwyck Motors finally caught up with their persistent tormentors in the City Baseball League, thanks to a fielding gem by a pitcher Jones Dairy invariably beats in close contests.

Joe Digastino was the winning pitcher in Wiltwycks' 2-0 triumph Sunday but it was Bud Finn who saved the game for Joe and gave the Highland sluggers the second half pennant.

The Wiltwyck triumph created a playoff between Jones Dairy and Wiltwyck Motors for the seasonal crown, but league president Ed Murphy said a single game would be played next Sunday to decide the title.

Ordinarily it would require a three-game series to decide the pennant but because of the lateness of the season twilight ball is impractical. One nine inning game was agreed upon for next Sunday, Murphy said.

As early as the first inning Digastino, who pitched a four-hitter and fanned four, was in trouble and here is where Mr. Finn, the pitcher-outfielder, made his presence felt.

Johnny Berardi and Tommy Maines were on base with two outs when Bob Graves lashed a sinking liner to right field. Finn came rushing in and nabbed the ball off his shoetops for a spectacular catch. Had the ball gone through, Berardi and Maines would have scored easily and Graves would be resting at least on third base.

Jones Dairy made only one serious threat after Finn's magnificent catch. With two outs in the fourth, Graves walked and Charlie Neff singled to left but Digastino got Jones on a fly for the third out.

Unearned Runs Hurt

Stout-hearted Tommy Fisher was the victim of two unearned runs in the first inning. After Joe Minadeo led off with a single, Augie Passante bounced a grounder to the usually sure-handed Tommy Carlino. It was a DP ball all the way but Carlino bobbled it and both runners were safe. Ed Passante's sacrifice moved both runners up a notch and Harry Kite chased them across with a single to right field.

Fisher gave up only two hits for the rest of the distance but Digastino never flinched after he was given a 2-0 lead and that's the way it wound up six innings later.

Tim Murphy opened the fifth with a double, the only extra base blow of the contest, but was left stranded. The eight hits in the game were shared by eight different players.

Villanova Over Kentucky, 25-6, in Major Upset; Michigan State Opens Saturday

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Mighty Michigan State, placed on the No. 1 hot spot by the nation's experts, opens its season Saturday against a vengeance-bent Michigan team as the collegiate football season rolls into its first big weekend.

Picked in a pre-season poll as the team most likely to succeed, the backfield-rich Spartans will be risking a 15-game winning streak before some 97,000 spectators at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Michigan, once the terror of the midwest, will be seeking to avenge last year's 25 to 0 walloping. But the odds say Biggie Munn's Spartans will make it No. 16 in a row.

However, the odds also said Kentucky would defeat Villanova —and look what happened! Villanova upset the Kentuckians, 25-6, in one of Saturday's big surprises.

Another shocker took place at Columbia, Mo., where Maryland, ranked No. 2 in the pre-season poll of writers and broadcasters, had the scare of its life before nipping Missouri, 13-10. It took a pass by Jack Scarbath in the last two minutes to bring the tottering Terrapins their 13th straight win.

Third-ranked Georgia Tech had none of these worries, warming up with a 54-6 rout of the Citadel. And in the weekly coast-to-coast TV show, Kansas played a strong, sound game to blank TCU, Southwest champion, 13-0. Gil Reich, ex-Army star, passed for both Kansas TD's.

Tigers on TV

This week's TV show will originate from here, featuring Princeton, winner of 22 straight, against Columbia. Princeton, picked to repeat in the Ivy League, will be without its all-everything backfield whiz, Dick Kazmaier, who was graduated.

Meantime, there'll be some attractive intersectional clashes on tap plus, of course, the usual conference and independent squabbles.

On Friday night, Northwestern —rated a "darkhorse" in the ever-tough Big 10 conference— travels to Los Angeles to face rugged Southern California. The west coast Trojans got away flying last Friday night with a 35 to 7 route of Washington State. Duke, meanwhile, journeys to Dallas to meet SMU.

One of Saturday's outstanding intersectional battles will unfold on Philadelphia's Franklin Field, where Notre Dame — remember when the Irish seemed to be No. 1 all the time?—meets a Pennsylvania team that ranks with the best in the east.

As usual, Frank Leahy, Notre Dame's brilliant strategist, takes a dim view of his team's chances this year. For once, Leahy says "we just don't have an offensive line to support our backs." The experts tabbed ND No. 10 in the pre-season poll.

Dodgers Need One for Pennant; Yankees Retain Narrow Margain

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

Only a super-miracle will prevent the Brooklyn Dodgers from representing the National League in the 1952 World Series against the New York Yankees or Cleveland Indians.

The storied Bums of Flatbush are sure of finishing in no worse than tie for first place when the season ends Sunday.

Manager Charley Dressen's pennant-starved athletes moved to within one victory of clinching the flag yesterday. Joe Black, making his first start of the season, pitched the Dodgers to an 8-2 victory over Boston while the runner-up New York Giants dropped a 6-2 decision to Philadelphia.

The victory boosted Brooklyn's lead over the miracle men of 1951 to six games. Both teams have six games left to play and one Dodger triumph or Giant defeat will nail down Brooklyn's first pennant since 1949.

Yankees Hold Lead

Meanwhile, Allie Reynolds kept the Yanks in the driver's seat in the American League race. The Chief, gunning for his first 20-victory season, pitched the Yanks to a 1-0 decision over Harry Byrd and the pesky Philadelphia Athletics. The Indians, behind Bob Lemon, waltzed to a 7-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers to remain 1½ games astern.

Reynolds permitted only three hits in posting his 19th victory and sixth shutout, but the double no hit star of 1951 had no easy sailing. Reynolds walked eight and almost yielded in the seventh and ninth innings.

Cass Michaels tripled to begin the seventh but died on third. The A's loaded the bases with one out in the ninth but couldn't pierce Reynolds' armor.

Reynolds got behind on Joe Astroth, 3-0. The Philadelphia catcher took a strike and then thought the next pitch was high. He started to trot to first but Umpire Ed Hurley called it a strike. This brought a vehement protest from the A's. Reynold's then nailed Astroth on a pop fly for the second out. Pinch-hitter Allie Clark also popped out to end the game.

The Yanks scored in the sixth when Yogi Berra singled Joe Collins across from second base.

Lemon Wins 21st

Lemon turned back the Tigers on four hits in gaining his 21st conquest of the campaign. Al Rosen was the big wheel for Cleveland, batting in four runs on his 27th homer and a double.

The Dodgers and Braves were locked in a 2-2 duel until the eighth when the Brooks scored six runs after two were out. Roy Campanella singled home the tie-breaking run. Black helped his own cause with a two-run single.

Veteran Russ Meyer parceled out nine hits in besting the Giants. The Phils clinched matters in the fourth when Bill Nicholson rocked Jim Hearn for a three-run homer.

Ted Kluszewski and rookie Jim Greengrass clouted home runs to account for all of Cincinnati's runs in a 4-3 triumph over Pittsburgh. Bill Serena smashed a two-run homer in the seventh to lead Chicago to a 3-2 decision over St. Louis.

In other American League games, Billy Pierce pitched Chicago to a 4-1 victory over St. Louis and the Boston Red Sox scored five runs in the ninth inning to vanquish Washington, 7-3.

Writers Pick Marciano by 28-7; Odds on Challenger Drop to 3-2

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 (AP) — Whom do you like? Jersey Joe Walcott, the sly old gent with the one punch dynamite? or Rocky Marciano, the swarming mauler with 10 years of youth riding behind his punches?

Expert opinion on tomorrow's world heavyweight championship fight at Municipal Stadium is sharply divided. There is solid support for the 38-year-old champ among the pros of the sport — the boxers, trainers and managers. Still boxing writers have swung on the Marciano bandwagon by a lopsided 28-7 score. Early odds favoring Marciano at 2 to 1 now have narrowed to 3 to 2.

All this is music to the ears of Jim Norris, and Herman Taylor, the co-promoters, who report a steady jingling of the box office cash register. Taylor estimated a house of 50,000 and a gate of "between $550,000 and $600,000."

There are indications of a tremendous closing surge as Marciano fans in New England realize there will be no home radio or television of the Brockton, Mass., slugger's title bid.

Theatre television will send the fight to some 50 theatres in 31 cities on a coast-to-coast network adding at least $125,000 to the receipts.

Both End Training

Walcott loped through three rounds yesterday at Atlantic City.

Up at Grossinger, N. Y., the 28-year-old Marciano finished up a 99-round training camp grind by going two with Tommy Harrison of Los Angeles. Manager Al Weill shortened the second round when Rocky was letting loose a heavy bombardment.

With their work behind them, the fighters now can let their managers settle such things as the rematch contract and the expected squabble over officials. Walcott will stay at camp until the morning of the fight. Marciano was due to drive into town today.

Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's wily proprietor, met with Norris last night to iron out their few conflicts on the return bout contract. Under a revised new clause, the fighter will share in any TV or radio receipts on the same basis as their 30-30 per cent split of the rematch gate. There will be no return, of course, if Walcott wins.

Louis Picks Joe

Although Walcott's camp made much of the return bout business, his followers exude confidence. Jersey Joe has declared Marciano as a "rough and tumble fighter." He says he hopes to win by a knockout.

Marciano, like Walcott, avoids any outright prediction but insists he is "more than ready, more than confident."

Others are not too shy about climbing out on the limb with predictions.

Joe Louis, who stiffened Walcott and was knocked out by Marciano in his last fight, likes Walcott—by a knockout. So does his manager, Marshall Miles.

Ray Arcell, Ezzard Charles' veteran trainer who dragged so many of Louis' victims to his corner, also likes the champ to out-smart the crude challenger.

Marciano's vivid slugging style has caught the imagination of most of the ring writers—including this one. I think the Rock will weather Walcott's best punches in the early rounds and come on to win by a knockout inside nine rounds.

Florence Chadwick Conquers Catalina; Points for Gibraltar and the Dardanelles

Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 22 (AP)—Amazing Florence Chadwick snatched five hours sleep after conquering the 21-mile Catalina Channel in record time, then awoke to announce plans to swim the Dardanelles and the Strait of Gibraltar.

Miss Chadwick, who staggered ashore yesterday morning at Rocky Point Vicente on the mainland, 13 hours, 47 minutes and 32 seconds after plunging into the ocean at Catalina Island, appeared at a party last night. Friends expressed amazement at her ability to recover from the fatiguing ordeal.

She had become the first woman to swim the channel. Her time is faster than the previous official record of 15 hours, 48 minutes set 25 years ago by George Young of Canada. Byron Summers of Los Angeles swam it in 13 hours, 35 minutes that same year, but no official AAU timer clocked him.

Although Miss Chadwick said she had extended herself more than in any previous swim, doctors said she finished in good shape. She suffered some bruises and as light cut in the chin from fish bumping against her. One fish, she said, swam inside her bathing suit but she got it out.

The 33-year-old bookkeeper said she had no aches or pains, although stomach cramps bothered her during the first few hours of the swim. She managed to work them off. She lost four pounds in weight.

Her navigator, Frank Seahorn, said she swam in a straight line, without drift, for about 22 miles, averaging 1.29 knots per hour. The normally-choppy channel was unusally calm.

The water was warm—ranging in the 60s — compared with the chill water which prevented her from completing the swim last July 3-4. She had to give up then less than two miles from her goal.

Mirons and Elstons Win Three in HVBL

Kingston's Hudson Valley Bowling League contenders flashed some pleasing qualities in Saturday night competition.

Two of them—Miron Lumber and Elston Sports Shop—scored sweeps on foreign lanes, but the youthful Rapp's Express came a 2-1 cropper against the Walden Merchants at the Bowlodrome.

Johnny Ferraro blasted 634 to pace Miron Lumber to an unprecedented three-game sweep over the pesky Bennett Roofers at Middletown to extend their early-season streak to six straight wins.

A Kingston cleanup on that perennial burial ground for local pennant hopes is a rare achievement indeed. Ferraro reeled off 233-180-221-634. Harold Broskie socked 224-204-598 as the Mirons stacked 2851, taking the last set by three pins.

Pop Biamonte anchored the losers with 202-197-213-612 and Jim Torelli hit 201-213-584.

Elstons Take Three

Meanwhile, the Elston Sport Shop trundlers turned in a stunning upset at Poughkeepsie with three straight over the Orphans. The locals had a 2870 aggregate with 1015 solo.

Captain Tommy Amato fired 606 with 211-183-212 and Dick Howard anchored with 201-583. Tom Carlino had a 225 solo. Emil Garbarino led the Orphans with 213-566.

Walden Merchants surprised Rapp's Express, formerly the Whiz Kids on alleys 9 and 10 at the Bowlodrome. Veteran Russ Brophy fired 624 with 226, 194 and 204. A. Traphagen posted 233-579 for the winners.

Chris Gallo anchored the Express keglers with 210-236-177-623.

Beacon Upsets, PHS Blues, 20-13

Apparently it's true what Coach Sam Kalloch is saying about the dismal football prospects at Poughkeepsie High this year.

The Blues made Sam a good prophet when they went out and blew the seasonal opener to little Beacon High, 20-13, Saturday afternoon at Beacon.

The Beacon veterans displayed a brilliant passing attack to topple the one-time DUSO League titans with a pair of third period TDs and the clincher in the fourth quarter.

The other DUSO schools were idle.

Maybrook High School toppled Marlborough in six-man football, 38 to 13.

Suffern High drubbed Highland High, 32 to 6, at the Suffern field.

Offices Are Wrecked

New Britain, Conn., Sept. 22 (AP) —A general alarm fire wrecked a number of offices and two court rooms in New Britain's five-story city hall last night. Damage, estimated by Mayor John L. Sullivan, at from $75,000 to $100,000 was confined to an addition to the 77-year-old main structure which, designed by the late Stanford White, noted architect slain by Broadway playboy Harry Thaw, originally had been a hotel. Sullivan said that fire stops prevented the blaze from spreading into the main structure.

High School Battles Mont Pleasant to 6-6 Tie in Seasonal Opener

Giles Returns Punt 63 Yards for Score

Coach Bill Burke counted his blessings after his "All-Junior" Kingston High School football squad had battled mighty Mont Pleasant of Schenectady to a 6-6 standstill Saturday night before 2,000 spectators at municipal stadium.

"A little more speed in the backfield and a tightening of the defensive flanks and we will do all right." he said. "And we got some tough breaks on penalties when they really hurt.

Burke had watched his fighting juniors stave off two big thrusts by the highly favored Red Raiders in the second half after a spectacular 63-yard punt return by Orville Giles in the second period sent the teams into the halftime respite tied at 6-6.

Mont Pleasant was pounding on the Kingston 13-yard line after an uninterupted march of 62 yards when the game ended but still Burke was pleased with what he saw.

Like the couple thousand in the park he saw Mont Pleasant's brilliant successor to Walter Jablonski, a swivel-hipped scooter named Dominick Giagiacomo travel 65 yards after eight minutes of the first period to put the Raiders ahead 6-0. The try for extra point by rushing failed.

Like the others, the Maroon mentor realized what a tremendous tackle this young Bob Engle can develop into before long. Engle was all over the field with bone-jarring tackles in one of the finest one-man defensive shows in years.

That Giagiacomo was summarily expelled from the game for slugging a Kingston player and sassing the referee was not overlooked as a vital factor in the 6-6 deadlock. Besides the touchdown, Giagiacomo reeled off a 30-yard run and was a threat to go all the way every time he got his hands on the ball.

Giagiacomo first swept around end for 15 yards from the Mont Pleasant 20 and then went all the way on a burst through the left side of his line. He broke into the clear near the Kingston 30 and was all by himself the rest of the way.

Giles Goes 63

Giles electrified the Kingston rooters by taking a punt on the Kingston 37 and racing 63 yards on a spectacular twisting run in which he reversed the field and outdistanced the Red Raider secondary.

The Maroons rallied around Giles with brilliant blocking. There were at least three key blocks on the play, with Giles cutting to the right sideline and then reversing his field. He swung back toward midfield and went straight down the field while Kingston blockers bowled Red Raiders over like tenpins.

Carmen Massa's placement try for the extra point failed to create a 6-6 deadlock and that's where it finished.

Fumbles Hurt

Mont Pleasant threatened twice in the second half but was balked by a fumble the first time and the clock the second.

Chuck Gerding, the right tackle recovered a Kingston fumble on the Maroon 33. Four slams at the line ground out a first down on the Kingston 19. Both sides were offside on the next play but Menia fumbled on the Kingston 18 and Massa recovered.

Mickey Shannon, Giagiacomo's replacement turned in some nifty running late in the fourth period when a promising Kingston advance halted on the MP 25. Shannon and Ronnie Salvatore alternated for three quick first downs to the Kingston 25. MP completed its only pass in three attempts when Dominick Scarlotta hit Jimmy Niland on the Kingston 13. Salvatore failed to gain in a smash at center and the game ended before the next play could unfold.

Kingston moved from its 32 to the MP 25 just before that. Orville Giles gained a yard on a pitchout and had the wind knocked out of him on the play but recovered and continued in the game. Pat Manfro and Carmen Massa went 20-yards and then 14 on successive tackle thrusts to a first down on the MP 33.

Four shots at the MP line and some confusion in the backfield blocking left Kingston short of a first down on the MP 25. That was Kingston's deepest penetration after the Giles TD run.

The Maroons tried only one pass and it failed. MP made good one out of three for a 12-yard pickup. Statistically, the Red Raiders outgained Kingston, 11 first downs to 7 and picked up 257 yards from scrimmage to 186 for the Burkemen.

Penalties hobbled promising Kingston advances on two occasions and the Maroon were guilty of four 15-yard infractions. Mont Pleasant lost 30 yards on penalties, one a 15-yarder but the didn't hurt like the Maroon violations.

Seixas Moves Up In Tennis Picture

Los Angeles, Sept. 22 (AP)—Because of his stunning straight-set upset victory over Australia's Frank Sedgman yesterday, Captain Vic Seixas of the U. S. Davis Cup team looms today as a major threat in the international tennis picture.

Sexias attributed his 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 triumph in the men's singles finals of the 26th Pacific Southwest tourney to his service. He connected consistently with his first ball, a high, hardtwist which the favored Sedgman, the defending champion, found hard to handle.

It was the first big tournament setback for Sedgman, rated as the world's top amateur, since early last year.

National champion Maureen Connolly of San Diego came through as expected, dropping one set before winning the women's singles crown from Doris Hart, Miami, Fla., 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

Altogether, it was a sad day for the Australians. Besides Sedgman, three other of his countrymen went down to defeat in finals matches.

Two of them, Ken Rosewell and Lewis Hoad, bowed to Herb Flam of Los Angeles and Hugh Stewart of Pasadena, for the men's double diadem. The Yankees came from behind after surviving match point to win—1-6, 9-7, 1-6, 9-7, 6-2.

The fourth Australian, Thelma Long, and teammate Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, Calif., lost the women's doubles crown to Miss Hart and Shirley Fry, Akron, O. The score—6-4, 6-3.

Wiltwycks Blank Dairy, 2-0, to Capture Second Half

PRACTICING PSYCHOLOGIST—Joe Black continues his study of psychology while applying it to the science of pitching. Black, showing the way he grips an unusual curve, has accounted for 25 victories as Brooklyn's best relief pitcher since Hugh Casey. The Morgan State alumnus is a strong candidate for either or both National League awards—rookie-of-the-year and most-valuable player. (NEA)

Digastino Shades Fisher in 4-Hit Duel Between Aces

Finn's Great Catch Save Highland Crew

Wiltwyck Motors finally caught up with their persistent tormentors in the City Baseball League, thanks to a fielding gem by a pitcher Jones Dairy invariably beats in close contests.

Joe Digastino was the winning pitcher in Wiltwycks' 2-0 triumph Sunday but it was Bud Finn who saved the game for Joe and gave the Highland sluggers the second half pennant.

The Wiltwyck triumph created a playoff between Jones Dairy and Wiltwyck Motors for the seasonal crown, but league president Ed Murphy said a single game would be played next Sunday to decide the title.

Ordinarily it would require a three-game series to decide the pennant but because of the lateness of the season twilight ball is impractical. One nine inning game was agreed upon for next Sunday, Murphy said.

As early as the first inning Digastino, who pitched a four-hitter and fanned four, was in trouble and here is where Mr. Finn, the pitcher-outfielder, made his presence felt.

Johnny Berardi and Tommy Maines were on base with two outs when Bob Graves lashed a sinking liner to right field. Finn came rushing in and nabbed the ball off his shoetops for a spectacular catch. Had the ball gone through, Berardi and Maines would have scored easily and Graves would be resting at least on third base.

Jones Dairy made only one serious threat after Finn's magnificent catch. With two outs in the fourth, Graves walked and Charlie Neff singled to left but Digastino got Jones on a fly for the third out.

Unearned Runs Hurt

Stout-hearted Tommy Fisher was the victim of two unearned runs in the first inning. After Joe Minadeo led off with a single, Augie Passante bounced a grounder to the usually sure-handed Tommy Carlino. It was a DP ball all the way but Carlino bobbled it and both runners were safe. Ed Passante's sacrifice moved both runners up a notch and Harry Kite chased them across with a single to right field.

Fisher gave up only two hits for the rest of the distance but Digastino never flinched after he was given a 2-0 lead and that's the way it wound up six innings later.

Tim Murphy opened the fifth with a double, the only extra base blow of the contest, but was left stranded. The eight hits in the game were shared by eight different players.

Villanova Over Kentucky, 25-6, in Major Upset; Michigan State Opens Saturday

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—Mighty Michigan State, placed on the No. 1 hot spot by the nation's experts, opens its season Saturday against a vengeance-bent Michigan team as the collegiate football season rolls into its first big weekend.

Picked in a pre-season poll as the team most likely to succeed, the backfield-rich Spartans will be risking a 15-game winning streak before some 97,000 spectators at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Michigan, once the terror of the midwest, will be seeking to avenge last year's 25 to 0 walloping. But the odds say Biggie Munn's Spartans will make it No. 16 in a row.

However, the odds also said Kentucky would defeat Villanova —and look what happened! Villanova upset the Kentuckians, 25-6, in one of Saturday's big surprises.

Another shocker took place at Columbia, Mo., where Maryland, ranked No. 2 in the pre-season poll of writers and broadcasters, had the scare of its life before nipping Missouri, 13-10. It took a pass by Jack Scarbath in the last two minutes to bring the tottering Terrapins their 13th straight win.

Third-ranked Georgia Tech had none of these worries, warming up with a 54-6 rout of the Citadel. And in the weekly coast-to-coast TV show, Kansas played a strong, sound game to blank TCU, Southwest champion, 13-0. Gil Reich, ex-Army star, passed for both Kansas TD's.

Tigers on TV

This week's TV show will originate from here, featuring Princeton, winner of 22 straight, against Columbia. Princeton, picked to repeat in the Ivy League, will be without its all-everything backfield whiz, Dick Kazmaier, who was graduated.

Meantime, there'll be some attractive intersectional clashes on tap plus, of course, the usual conference and independent squabbles.

On Friday night, Northwestern —rated a "darkhorse" in the ever-tough Big 10 conference— travels to Los Angeles to face rugged Southern California. The west coast Trojans got away flying last Friday night with a 35 to 7 route of Washington State. Duke, meanwhile, journeys to Dallas to meet SMU.

One of Saturday's outstanding intersectional battles will unfold on Philadelphia's Franklin Field, where Notre Dame — remember when the Irish seemed to be No. 1 all the time?—meets a Pennsylvania team that ranks with the best in the east.

As usual, Frank Leahy, Notre Dame's brilliant strategist, takes a dim view of his team's chances this year. For once, Leahy says "we just don't have an offensive line to support our backs." The experts tabbed ND No. 10 in the pre-season poll.

Dodgers Need One for Pennant; Yankees Retain Narrow Margain

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

Only a super-miracle will prevent the Brooklyn Dodgers from representing the National League in the 1952 World Series against the New York Yankees or Cleveland Indians.

The storied Bums of Flatbush are sure of finishing in no worse than tie for first place when the season ends Sunday.

Manager Charley Dressen's pennant-starved athletes moved to within one victory of clinching the flag yesterday. Joe Black, making his first start of the season, pitched the Dodgers to an 8-2 victory over Boston while the runner-up New York Giants dropped a 6-2 decision to Philadelphia.

The victory boosted Brooklyn's lead over the miracle men of 1951 to six games. Both teams have six games left to play and one Dodger triumph or Giant defeat will nail down Brooklyn's first pennant since 1949.

Yankees Hold Lead

Meanwhile, Allie Reynolds kept the Yanks in the driver's seat in the American League race. The Chief, gunning for his first 20-victory season, pitched the Yanks to a 1-0 decision over Harry Byrd and the pesky Philadelphia Athletics. The Indians, behind Bob Lemon, waltzed to a 7-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers to remain 1½ games astern.

Reynolds permitted only three hits in posting his 19th victory and sixth shutout, but the double no hit star of 1951 had no easy sailing. Reynolds walked eight and almost yielded in the seventh and ninth innings.

Cass Michaels tripled to begin the seventh but died on third. The A's loaded the bases with one out in the ninth but couldn't pierce Reynolds' armor.

Reynolds got behind on Joe Astroth, 3-0. The Philadelphia catcher took a strike and then thought the next pitch was high. He started to trot to first but Umpire Ed Hurley called it a strike. This brought a vehement protest from the A's. Reynold's then nailed Astroth on a pop fly for the second out. Pinch-hitter Allie Clark also popped out to end the game.

The Yanks scored in the sixth when Yogi Berra singled Joe Collins across from second base.

Lemon Wins 21st

Lemon turned back the Tigers on four hits in gaining his 21st conquest of the campaign. Al Rosen was the big wheel for Cleveland, batting in four runs on his 27th homer and a double.

The Dodgers and Braves were locked in a 2-2 duel until the eighth when the Brooks scored six runs after two were out. Roy Campanella singled home the tie-breaking run. Black helped his own cause with a two-run single.

Veteran Russ Meyer parceled out nine hits in besting the Giants. The Phils clinched matters in the fourth when Bill Nicholson rocked Jim Hearn for a three-run homer.

Ted Kluszewski and rookie Jim Greengrass clouted home runs to account for all of Cincinnati's runs in a 4-3 triumph over Pittsburgh. Bill Serena smashed a two-run homer in the seventh to lead Chicago to a 3-2 decision over St. Louis.

In other American League games, Billy Pierce pitched Chicago to a 4-1 victory over St. Louis and the Boston Red Sox scored five runs in the ninth inning to vanquish Washington, 7-3.

Pitching—Allie Reynolds, Yankees—Pitched New York to a 1-0, three-hit victory over Philadelphia to enable Yanks to maintain their 1½ game lead over Cleveland.

Batting—Bill Serena, Cubs—Belted two-run homer in seventh inning to lead Chicago to a 3-2 triumph over St. Louis.

Washington — Jimmy Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., won the Celebrities Tournament with a 72-hole score of 282.

Mirons and Elstons Win Three in HVBL

Kingston's Hudson Valley Bowling League contenders flashed some pleasing qualities in Saturday night competition.

Two of them—Miron Lumber and Elston Sports Shop—scored sweeps on foreign lanes, but the youthful Rapp's Express came a 2-1 cropper against the Walden Merchants at the Bowlodrome.

Johnny Ferraro blasted 634 to pace Miron Lumber to an unprecedented three-game sweep over the pesky Bennett Roofers at Middletown to extend their early-season streak to six straight wins.

A Kingston cleanup on that perennial burial ground for local pennant hopes is a rare achievement indeed. Ferraro reeled off 233-180-221-634. Harold Broskie socked 224-204-598 as the Mirons stacked 2851, taking the last set by three pins.

Elstons Take Three

Meanwhile, the Elston Sport Shop trundlers turned in a stunning upset at Poughkeepsie with three straight over the Orphans. The locals had a 2870 aggregate with 1015 solo.

Captain Tommy Amato fired 606 with 211-183-212 and Dick Howard anchored with 201-583. Tom Carlino had a 225 solo. Emil Garbarino led the Orphans with 213-566.

Beacon Upsets, PHS Blues, 20-13

Apparently it's true what Coach Sam Kalloch is saying about the dismal football prospects at Poughkeepsie High this year.

The Blues made Sam a good prophet when they went out and blew the seasonal opener to little Beacon High, 20-13, Saturday afternoon at Beacon.

The Beacon veterans displayed a brilliant passing attack to topple the one-time DUSO League titans with a pair of third period TDs and the clincher in the fourth quarter.

The other DUSO schools were idle.

Maybrook High School toppled Marlborough in six-man football, 38 to 13.

Suffern High drubbed Highland High, 32 to 6, at the Suffern field.

Writers Pick Marciano by 28-7; Odds on Challenger Drop to 3-2

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 (AP) — Whom do you like? Jersey Joe Walcott, the sly old gent with the one punch dynamite? or Rocky Marciano, the swarming mauler with 10 years of youth riding behind his punches?

Expert opinion on tomorrow's world heavyweight championship fight at Municipal Stadium is sharply divided. There is solid support for the 38-year-old champ among the pros of the sport — the boxers, trainers and managers. Still boxing writers have swung on the Marciano bandwagon by a lopsided 28-7 score. Early odds favoring Marciano at 2 to 1 now have narrowed to 3 to 2.

All this is music to the ears of Jim Norris, and Herman Taylor, the co-promoters, who report a steady jingling of the box office cash register. Taylor estimated a house of 50,000 and a gate of "between $550,000 and $600,000."

There are indications of a tremendous closing surge as Marciano fans in New England realize there will be no home radio or television of the Brockton, Mass., slugger's title bid.

Theatre television will send the fight to some 50 theatres in 31 cities on a coast-to-coast network adding at least $125,000 to the receipts.

Both End Training

Up at Grossinger, N. Y., the 28-year-old Marciano finished up a 99-round training camp grind by going two with Tommy Harrison of Los Angeles. Manager Al Weill shortened the second round when Rocky was letting loose a heavy bombardment.

With their work behind them, the fighters now can let their managers settle such things as the rematch contract and the expected squabble over officials. Walcott will stay at camp until the morning of the fight. Marciano was due to drive into town today.

Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's wily proprietor, met with Norris last night to iron out their few conflicts on the return bout contract. Under a revised new clause, the fighter will share in any TV or radio receipts on the same basis as their 30-30 per cent split of the rematch gate. There will be no return, of course, if Walcott wins.

Louis Picks Joe

Although Walcott's camp made much of the return bout business, his followers exude confidence. Jersey Joe has declared Marciano as a "rough and tumble fighter." He says he hopes to win by a knockout.

Marciano, like Walcott, avoids any outright prediction but insists he is "more than ready, more than confident."

Others are not too shy about climbing out on the limb with predictions.

Joe Louis, who stiffened Walcott and was knocked out by Marciano in his last fight, likes Walcott—by a knockout. So does his manager, Marshall Miles.

Ray Arcell, Ezzard Charles' veteran trainer who dragged so many of Louis' victims to his corner, also likes the champ to out-smart the crude challenger.

Marciano's vivid slugging style has caught the imagination of most of the ring writers—including this one. I think the Rock will weather Walcott's best punches in the early rounds and come on to win by a knockout inside nine rounds.

Florence Chadwick Conquers Catalina; Points for Gibraltar and the Dardanelles

Santa Monica, Calif., Sept. 22 (AP)—Amazing Florence Chadwick snatched five hours sleep after conquering the 21-mile Catalina Channel in record time, then awoke to announce plans to swim the Dardanelles and the Strait of Gibraltar.

Miss Chadwick, who staggered ashore yesterday morning at Rocky Point Vicente on the mainland, 13 hours, 47 minutes and 32 seconds after plunging into the ocean at Catalina Island, appeared at a party last night. Friends expressed amazement at her ability to recover from the fatiguing ordeal.

She had become the first woman to swim the channel. Her time is faster than the previous official record of 15 hours, 48 minutes set 25 years ago by George Young of Canada. Byron Summers of Los Angeles swam it in 13 hours, 35 minutes that same year, but no official AAU timer clocked him.

Although Miss Chadwick said she had extended herself more than in any previous swim, doctors said she finished in good shape. She suffered some bruises and as light cut in the chin from fish bumping against her. One fish, she said, swam inside her bathing suit but she got it out.

The 33-year-old bookkeeper said she had no aches or pains, although stomach cramps bothered her during the first few hours of the swim. She managed to work them off. She lost four pounds in weight.

Her navigator, Frank Seahorn, said she swam in a straight line, without drift, for about 22 miles, averaging 1.29 knots per hour. The normally-choppy channel was unusally calm.

The water was warm—ranging in the 60s — compared with the chill water which prevented her from completing the swim last July 3-4. She had to give up then less than two miles from her goal.

Offices Are Wrecked

New Britain, Conn., Sept. 22 (AP) —A general alarm fire wrecked a number of offices and two court rooms in New Britain's five-story city hall last night. Damage, estimated by Mayor John L. Sullivan, at from $75,000 to $100,000 was confined to an addition to the 77-year-old main structure which, designed by the late Stanford White, noted architect slain by Broadway playboy Harry Thaw, originally had been a hotel. Sullivan said that fire stops prevented the blaze from spreading into the main structure.

Demaret Confirms All-Time Rating

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP)—When the Professional Golfers Association names its 10 greatest pros of the past 50 years, Jimmy Demaret barely made the list.

He took last place.

But it proved a happy, newsworthy choice.

The honor was conferred Saturday night. Twenty hours later Demaret, now a somewhat portly 42-year-old, showed how he got to the top by winning $2,400 in the $15,000 National Celebrities open tournament, sponsored by the Washington Post.

Demaret has won a lot of tournaments in his day, but it's doubtful if he ever won one with a more unique ending.

He began the day in third place, shot a 1-over par 71—and yet came in the winner with a 282.

The reason, of course, was that every one else faltered some.

Chief falterers: Jerry Barber of Pasadena, Calif., and Byron Nelson, who has been in retirement for six years.

Barber began the day with a two-stroke lead on Demaret. Early in his round he went two-under par, and then the 135-pounder inexplicably lost his touch—and his chance to win his first major tournament. He bogeyed four holes in a row.

His final score: 75, good for a 284 and a tie for fifth. Nelson was only a stroke behind Barber at the start of yesterday's round but he had putter trouble and had to settle for a 73.

Slam Double Stirs Vigorous Debate

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Please discuss the opening lead in the accompanying hand," requests a Memphis reader. "Does East's double call for a club lead or merely for some thoughful lead?

"With a club lead, South can make the slam. If West leads either red suit, however, South is set.

"West actually led the ten of hearts, and East ruffed. A trump return now led to a set of two tricks.

"As you can see, the double turned out well, but the argument over the hand still rages. Many of our best players say that the double calls for a club opening lead without any ifs, ands or buts. Is this correct?"

Many first-class players follow the principle that a slam double calls for an opening lead in the first side suit bid by the dummy. If you want some other side suit led, you just don't double; and there's at least an even chance that your partner will guess right.

In the case of today's hand, if East belongs to that school of thought he should not double six spades. West will then open a red suit, and the slam will be defeated. It's true that East greatly prefers a heart lead, but he cannot have everything. If he uses the slam double to call for a particular lead, he must expect to run into a hand now and then that would work better with a different convention on opening leads.

Certain other fine players use the slam double not to indicate a particular suit but to forbid the "expected" opening lead and to request a thoughful choice. For example, if there is only one unbid suit and that is the "expected" lead, the slam double forbids that lead.

If East and West are using that sort of general slam double, West should surely lead a heart. He expects his partner to ruff, and he leads his longest suit in the hope of finding the ruff.

Note that West would not expect his partner to be short in clubs. North's delayed club bid is almost surely a cue-bid rather than a real suit. Hence North and South should not have nine clubs between them.

The question of whether East should double in this hand, or of what opening lead the double requests, is therefore a matter of partnership understanding. Either convention works well—provided that your partner knows which one you're using.

A YOUNG WOMAN AND THE PROPRIETIES

This morning a letter explains: "I will be leaving home very soon to take a position in a big city several hundred miles away. I have been promised a two-room apartment when I arrive. My question regards visitors: I am in my early thirties and since I will be living alone, I would like to know if it would be proper to have men friends come up to my apartment before going out on a date? Also, on occasion to have a man to dinner? My strict upbringing makes me wonder about the propriety of such a thing."

Answer: When he calls for you I think you should be ready to leave your apartment and go out at once. When a man becomes a real friend, there is no impropriety in having him to dinner.

Careless Guest

Dear Mrs. Post: Ever since I was a little girl my mother has always stressed that according to Emily Post, a guest in one's house is always right and that the hostess should never make her guests feel uncomfortable. But please, Mrs. Post, how often can I allow a guest, who is an incurably careless smoker, to burn scars into good tables without becoming angry?

Answer: The easiest way of protecting your furniture would be to cease inviting that guest. The only alternative is ceaseless attention whenever that guest is smoking.

Misquoting Me

Dear Mrs. Post: I don't understand your saying (in your book) that a visiting card invitation from people we don't know well must be answered by sending a third person note, exactly the way we'd answer a formal invitation. I can't see why "accepts with pleasure" could not be just as suitably written on our own visiting card.

Answer: There must be some misunderstanding because my book says "Accepts with pleasure, Wednesday at 4" written across your visiting card is the correct reply to a visiting card invitation. Third person replies are used only in answer to a formal invitation.

Titles Omitted

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me the correct way for my husband and me to sign the register at a funeral home when the deceased and his family are close friends. Is it: Mr. and Mrs. John Smith or John and Mary Smith?

Answer: He would sign John Smith and you would write Mary Smith directly beneath it.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, Booklet No. 501, "Etiquette of Weddings," explains in detail the announcement, invitation, reception, etc. To obtain a copy send 25 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

'Wind' Stage Version Will Become Musical

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—There's going to be a stage version of "Gone With the Wind," Margaret Mitchell's best selling novel that did a 40 million dollar movie business.

Stephens Mitchell, brother of the late novelist, announced yesterday that David O. Selznick will produce the show as a Broadway musical under the title "Sarlet O'Hara.

Selznick, who produced the film version, will be making his debut as a stage producer.

Mitchell said the producer paid $2,500 for the stage rights. Mitchell explained that "we chose to accept a nominal sum and gamble that the musical will be a success and our royalties large."

New Jersey Fair Opens

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP)—The Trenton State Fair plays host to the small fry today after giving the grownups a gander at what's in store for them. An estimated 75,000 visitors flocked through the midway, oggled the sideshows and toured the exhibits yesterday in what officials said was the biggest opening day turnout since the fair started in 1747. Among the special events planned for the kiddies are a circus, novelty acts, clowns, contests and plenty of prizes. All kids who come to the gates will be admitted free although there will be a charge for the grandstand show.

Family of Eleven To Stay Together, Two Brothers Vow

Bordentown, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP)—"We're going to do our best to keep the whole family together, raise them as best we can."

With those words two young brothers with families of their own today made plans to bury their parents who were killed in an auto accident and care for their nine younger orphaned brothers and sisters.

Grim and dry-eyed, Thomas Conger, at 21 the oldest of the family, and Benjamin, the next oldest at 20, made their vows near the quiet lane where their parents met death Saturday.

John Conger, 47, and his wife, Loretto, 38, were motoring home after a visit with her parents when another car sliced into them as they turned off Route 39 into the dirt road leading to their modest home.

Is Killed Instantly

Mrs. Conger was killed instantly. Conger died in a hospital a few hours later. They left 11 children, ranging in age from 21 on down to 10 months.

Some of the kids heard the awful crash and ran to the shattered family car. Maureen, 15, was there when state police gently lifted the broken body of her mother from the wreckage.

The driver of the other car, Vittorio Martino, 21, and his passenger, 18-year-old Mableline Muccie, both of nearby Trenton, were taken to a hospital. He is to be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of causing death by auto.

Thomas and Benjamin both are married and live in their own homes not far from their parents' house. Benjamin has a small son.

They took stock of the tragedy yesterday, their grief held in check by the realization of the task before them.

"Somehow they must all get through high school," Benjamin told a reporter.

Demaret Confirms All-Time Rating

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP)—When the Professional Golfers Association names its 10 greatest pros of the past 50 years, Jimmy Demaret barely made the list.

He took last place.

But it proved a happy, newsworthy choice.

The honor was conferred Saturday night. Twenty hours later Demaret, now a somewhat portly 42-year-old, showed how he got to the top by winning $2,400 in the $15,000 National Celebrities open tournament, sponsored by the Washington Post.

Demaret has won a lot of tournaments in his day, but it's doubtful if he ever won one with a more unique ending.

He began the day in third place, shot a 1-over par 71—and yet came in the winner with a 282.

The reason, of course, was that every one else faltered some.

Chief falterers: Jerry Barber of Pasadena, Calif., and Byron Nelson, who has been in retirement for six years.

Barber began the day with a two-stroke lead on Demaret. Early in his round he went two-under par, and then the 135-pounder inexplicably lost his touch—and his chance to win his first major tournament. He bogeyed four holes in a row.

His final score: 75, good for a 284 and a tie for fifth. Nelson was only a stroke behind Barber at the start of yesterday's round but he had putter trouble and had to settle for a 73.

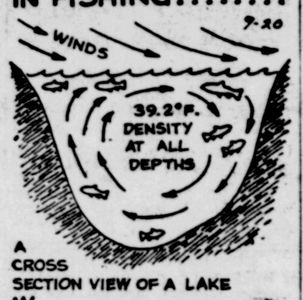
THE MEANING OF "FALL TURNOVER" IN FISHING.....



A CROSS SECTION VIEW OF A LAKE

WITH THE COMING OF COLD FALL NIGHTS THE SURFACE WATER COOLS AND BECOMES HEAVIER IN WEIGHT. THEN IT SINKS TO MIX WITH THE NOW WARMER WATER BELOW. WHEN THIS MIXING IS COMPLETED THE MAXIMUM DENSITY OF 39.2°F. IS REACHED. THEN, WIND CIRCULATES IT AGAIN. THIS INCREASES OXYGEN AND FOOD SUPPLIES IN THE COLDER SURFACE WATER, BRINGING COLD WATER FISH TO THE SURFACE TO FEED.

Slam Double Stirs Vigorous Debate

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Please discuss the opening lead in the accompanying hand," requests a Memphis reader. "Does East's double call for a club lead or merely for some thoughful lead?

"With a club lead, South can make the slam. If West leads either red suit, however, South is set.

"West actually led the ten of hearts, and East ruffed. A trump return now led to a set of two tricks.

"As you can see, the double turned out well, but the argument over the hand still rages. Many of our best players say that the double calls for a club opening lead without any ifs, ands or buts. Is this correct?"

Many first-class players follow the principle that a slam double calls for an opening lead in the first side suit bid by the dummy. If you want some other side suit led, you just don't double; and there's at least an even chance that your partner will guess right.

In the case of today's hand, if East belongs to that school of thought he should not double six spades. West will then open a red suit, and the slam will be defeated. It's true that East greatly prefers a heart lead, but he cannot have everything. If he uses the slam double to call for a particular lead, he must expect to run into a hand now and then that would work better with a different convention on opening leads.

Certain other fine players use the slam double not to indicate a particular suit but to forbid the "expected" opening lead and to request a thoughful choice. For example, if there is only one unbid suit and that is the "expected" lead, the slam double forbids that lead.

If East and West are using that sort of general slam double, West should surely lead a heart. He expects his partner to ruff, and he leads his longest suit in the hope of finding the ruff.

Note that West would not expect his partner to be short in clubs. North's delayed club bid is almost surely a cue-bid rather than a real suit. Hence North and South should not have nine clubs between them.

The question of whether East should double in this hand, or of what opening lead the double requests, is therefore a matter of partnership understanding. Either convention works well—provided that your partner knows which one you're using.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

A YOUNG WOMAN AND THE PROPRIETIES

This morning a letter explains: "I will be leaving home very soon to take a position in a big city several hundred miles away. I have been promised a two-room apartment when I arrive. My question regards visitors: I am in my early thirties and since I will be living alone, I would like to know if it would be proper to have men friends come up to my apartment before going out on a date? Also, on occasion to have a man to dinner? My strict upbringing makes me wonder about the propriety of such a thing."

Answer: When he calls for you I think you should be ready to leave your apartment and go out at once. When a man becomes a real friend, there is no impropriety in having him to dinner.

Careless Guest

Dear Mrs. Post: Ever since I was a little girl my mother has always stressed that according to Emily Post, a guest in one's house is always right and that the hostess should never make her guests feel uncomfortable. But please, Mrs. Post, how often can I allow a guest, who is an incurably careless smoker, to burn scars into good tables without becoming angry?

Answer: The easiest way of protecting your furniture would be to cease inviting that guest. The only alternative is ceaseless attention whenever that guest is smoking.

Misquoting Me

Dear Mrs. Post: I don't understand your saying (in your book) that a visiting card invitation from people we don't know well must be answered by sending a third person note, exactly the way we'd answer a formal invitation. I can't see why "accepts with pleasure" could not be just as suitably written on our own visiting card.

Answer: There must be some misunderstanding because my book says "Accepts with pleasure, Wednesday at 4" written across your visiting card is the correct reply to a visiting card invitation. Third person replies are used only in answer to a formal invitation.

Titles Omitted

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me the correct way for my husband and me to sign the register at a funeral home when the deceased and his family are close friends. Is it: Mr. and Mrs. John Smith or John and Mary Smith?

Answer: He would sign John Smith and you would write Mary Smith directly beneath it.

Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, Booklet No. 501, "Etiquette of Weddings," explains in detail the announcement, invitation, reception, etc. To obtain a copy send 25 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

'Wind' Stage Version Will Become Musical

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—There's going to be a stage version of "Gone With the Wind," Margaret Mitchell's best selling novel that did a 40 million dollar movie business.

Stephens Mitchell, brother of the late novelist, announced yesterday that David O. Selznick will produce the show as a Broadway musical under the title "Sarlet O'Hara.

Selznick, who produced the film version, will be making his debut as a stage producer.

Mitchell said the producer paid $2,500 for the stage rights. Mitchell explained that "we chose to accept a nominal sum and gamble that the musical will be a success and our royalties large."

New Jersey Fair Opens

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP)—The Trenton State Fair plays host to the small fry today after giving the grownups a gander at what's in store for them. An estimated 75,000 visitors flocked through the midway, oggled the sideshows and toured the exhibits yesterday in what officials said was the biggest opening day turnout since the fair started in 1747. Among the special events planned for the kiddies are a circus, novelty acts, clowns, contests and plenty of prizes. All kids who come to the gates will be admitted free although there will be a charge for the grandstand show.

Bordentown, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP)—"We're going to do our best to keep the whole family together, raise them as best we can."

With those words two young brothers with families of their own today made plans to bury their parents who were killed in an auto accident and care for their nine younger orphaned brothers and sisters.

Grim and dry-eyed, Thomas Conger, at 21 the oldest of the family, and Benjamin, the next oldest at 20, made their vows near the quiet lane where their parents met death Saturday.

John Conger, 47, and his wife, Loretto, 38, were motoring home after a visit with her parents when another car sliced into them as they turned off Route 39 into the dirt road leading to their modest home.

Is Killed Instantly

Mrs. Conger was killed instantly. Conger died in a hospital a few hours later. They left 11 children, ranging in age from 21 on down to 10 months.

Some of the kids heard the awful crash and ran to the shattered family car. Maureen, 15, was there when state police gently lifted the broken body of her mother from the wreckage.

The driver of the other car, Vittorio Martino, 21, and his passenger, 18-year-old Mableline Muccie, both of nearby Trenton, were taken to a hospital. He is to be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of causing death by auto.

Thomas and Benjamin both are married and live in their own homes not far from their parents' house. Benjamin has a small son.

They took stock of the tragedy yesterday, their grief held in check by the realization of the task before them.

Ever Break an Arm?

By FRANK TRIPP

There was the proverbial moron who didn't know enough to come in out of the rain, and there was Hornsby's hound that swam the river to get a drink. I now present an incredible incident of insensibility, which by comparison makes the moron and the hound paragons of wisdom.

It is the tale of a sap who went around with a broken arm for a week—and didn't know it. There's no hearsay about it, for it was my arm and I'm the sap.

The event wouldn't be newsworthy except that it will clinch your long time suspicion that this chronicler has a screw loose somewhere. Then too, I've discovered some worthwhile advantages in a broken arm and feel obligated to report them to any who are planning fractured limbs in the near future.

First off, make it the left arm, and between the wrist and the elbow. There are two bones there, one spot where nature provided a spare. Make it the big bone, to which the thumb is attached somehow.

YOU CAN SPARE the thumb better than four fingers. I've discovered. Or maybe you aren't mixing yours by the four finger system any more.

Either way, you still have another four fingers on your right hand, whether or not there's that much left in the bottle. You also have another thumb to thumb a ride; or to indicate your hatred for disagreeable persons—in case you still employ that childish method.

If not, you'll need to invent something equivalent, because you will be exposed to endless questioning, advice, and recitals of fracture experiences, from bores to whom you'll want to signal disdain without putting yourself on record orally.

To increase dismay and conversation you diagnose your own case and go about for the first week declaring that you have a sprained wrist. Since it must not be allowed to stiffen by disuse, you massage it, swing it, stretch it, twist it, soak it with horse liniment; and, if acrobatically inclined, do a few handstands and cart wheels.

AT THE END of a week, if a mite suspicious of your diagnosis, you sneak to a doctor. He takes one look at your wrist, sees the bruised blood vessels up and down your forearm, and phones the X-ray room.

He asks, "When did this happen?" You say, "A week ago yesterday." Then, if he knows you well enough he says, "You damned fool!" If not, he just thinks it.

You have a hard time convincing the doc and the X-ray man that you've been open for business as usual all week, driven a car 250 miles and attended a clambake. They find a clean break of the big bone an inch above the wrist. In spite of the abuse and your acrobatics, the bones have found their place perfectly and began to knit.

THE DOC is so disgusted with all the study he put on fractures that he just says, "You must be an ox;" meaning, of course, that you should have saved his time and seen a veterinarian.

He makes you a sling, so you won't be chinning yourself in a doorway for a couple of weeks, and turns you loose—no cast, no bandages, no nothing. You get the impression that he's thinking "let the beast lick his own wounds."

Your household soon becomes sorry that you went to a doctor. Before you knew of the fracture you pompously declined all offers of assistance. But now you can't put on your socks, tie your tie or cut your meat. You sing high praise for the zipper. You sit around all day, waited on hand and foot.

THE EXPERIENCE is quite blissful; well worth the pain and inconvenience. Nobody asks you to do something every ten minutes. You can read by the hour without interruption. You are not drafted as the fourth hand in a screwy bridge game, asked to bring wood for the fireplace, not even raise the shades or close a window.

There's only one catch to the act. You have to be very careful that you don't get caught in the secrecy of your bedchamber pulling a cork out of a bottle or sorting your fishing tackle. Keep remembering that it's broken, not sprained—and wince every now and then. Don't get caught being ambidextrous.

Because you might want to get away with it again some time.

Navy Exam Set For December 13

The seventh nation-wide competitive examination for the U. S. Navy College Training Program will be held Dec. 13, it was announced today by James E. Tobin, guidance director of Kingston High School and local U. S. Navy civilian representative.

Tobin said that applications for the examination, which is open to all high school seniors or graduates between the ages of 17 and 21, must be filed prior to midnight, Nov. 22. He will provide specific information about the program, including time and place of the examination, method of applying, age and scholastic qualifications, upon request.

Those who are successful in passing the aptitude test will be interviewed and given physical examinations; then, if they are found in all respects qualified, their names will be submitted to state and territorial selection committees composed of prominent citizens and naval officers. The navy expects to enter about 2,000 students into the program commencing with the fall term of college, 1953.

The students selected by these competitive examinations will be assigned to the 52 Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps units which are located in various universities and colleges in the United States. If accepted by the college, they will be appointed Midshipmen, USNR, and will have their tuition, books and normal fees paid for by the government. In addition they will receive pay at the rate of $50 a month for the four-year period. Upon graduation they may be commissioned as officers in the Regular Army or Marine Corps and required to serve on active duty for three years. At the end of their second year of active duty they may apply for retention in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps, or when active duty requirements have been fulfilled they may transfer to the Reserve and, depending upon the needs of the service, return to civilian life.

Marines to Hold Three OCS Classes

The Marine Corps will conduct three Officer Candidate classes for college men this fiscal year it was announced today by T.Sgt. Awkerman, noncommissioned officer in charge of the Marine Recruiting Station in Kingston.

Two of the Officer Candidate classes, for seniors and college grads, will be conducted at Quantico, Va., in March and July, 1953. Members of these classes will attend a ten-week course of instruction as enlisted men. On successful completion of the course, they are commissioned as second lieutenants and retained on active duty for two years.

Freshmen, sophomores and juniors are eligible for the Platoon Leaders Class which will be conducted in June and July, 1953. Members of the PLC will attend two summers of training, and graduation from college, the men are commissioned as second lieutenants and sent to active duty for a period of two years.

Newly commissioned second lieutenants from either program then receive five months specialized officer training which is credited toward the required two years of active duty.

Sergeant Awkerman indicated that qualified college men in both senior and undergraduate categories are being accepted now. Seniors will not be called for training until they graduate. Accepted undergraduates will not be called for training until the summer of 1953. All undergraduates of the Platoon Leaders Class will be deferred from Selective Service according to the sergeant.

College women are eligible for identical programs.

Five Americans

oranges. The men cared for their wounds as best they could. The private gave a lieutenant in the bunker a blood transfusion from a bottle.

During that first night, the private said, "the Reds came up to the bunker every five or ten minutes. Each time one of them popped his head in the door we let him have it with our carbines. After that we kept quiet but were constantly being hit by either our own or the Chinese artillery and mortars and tanks. One shell came through the aperture (in the bunker), but luckily the air strikes missed us."

"All of us were bloody and I think that's what saved us. We were afraid to fire because we might let them know we were alive. So we just go as low as we could behind the other bodies and sweated it out. We dozed once in awhile, but we couldn't sleep. No one lost his head. All of us were cool because we just knew the second div. would retake Baldy."

Cooling Rate

After death the body cools at an average rate of about 1.5 degrees an hour, says the American Medical Association.

area, he said. Its function is to act as the agency of the state to institute federal assistance in flooded areas, to assist federal agencies in flood areas, and it is the recipient of complaints relative to new flood areas in the state, he explained.

The commission at present is involved in 60 projects costing over $142,000, Evans stated. The legislation that created state flood control provides that no state funds may be spent in flood control work except in conjunction with federal funds, the speaker said.

Evans reported that flood control works have been completed at Mt. Pleasant with a federal grant of $50,000 and a state grant of $17,000. No improvements can be undertaken on the lower Esopus until the U. S. Army Engineers are empowered to act, he reported.

Evans was introduced by Attorney Fred Stang.

In answer to a question as to why local areas have been flooded for the first time in 50 years, Evans noted that the area is in a cycle of heavy precipitation, as is evidenced by the level of Lake Ontario, which is at the highest stage in 100 years.

The following resolution was adopted at the meeting: "That we, the Ulster County Flood Control Committee, duly assembled, due hereby and herein urge and request that the executive director of the N. Y. State Flood Control Commission be cognizant of the fact that the lower Esopus Creek basin has been subjected to extreme flood conditions over the past three years, causing destruction of property and anxiety as to future floods in this area. In view of this, the executive secretary of the N. Y. State Flood Control Commission is hereby asked to use his good offices and influences wtih the proper officials of the City of New York and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in obtaining their cooperation to alleviate this condition."

The continuity of the British monarchy has only been broken once in over 1,000 years.

away all clouds in the nation's coal industry.

The Southern Coal Producers Association, not involved in the agreement, has called a meeting of its directors for Wednesday in Washington.

Joseph E. Moody, chief negotiator for the southern group, said he considers the new UMW-northern operators' pact "awful rough." He added:

"I haven't any idea what my people will do."

The UMW contract with the southern operators expires Oct. 1.

The eastern Pennsylvania anthracite (hard coal) pact expires Sept. 30, but there is little likelihood of trouble in that field. The operators have already reached a tentative agreement with Lewis, calling for them to accept contract terms agreed on in the remainder of the industry.

Seymour Is Charged

Edward Seymour, 57, of 130 Wrentham street, was arrested Saturday on a malicious mischief charge. The information charges that he "by-passed" an electric meter by a wiring arrangement. He was arrested on a warrant executed by County Investigator Arthur Brown and Deputy Sheriff Chester Wolven and turned over to the local police. The case was put over for a week to allow the defendant time to obtain counsel when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

Jacoby on Canasta

Self-Control Is Canasta Aid

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

I have received a number of questions about Cut-Throat Canasta, the three-handed game in which the player who first takes the discard pile becomes a lone wolf against the other two as partners. Many of the letters ask me to give them the secret of winning at the new game.

That's easy, but advice is not enough. The secret of winning at Cut-Throat Canasta is to resist temptation. This seems to be good advice in many other fields also; but people somehow still manage to fall.

In Cut-Throat Canasta you tend to reach for the discard pile too soon. Unless you can meld out immediately, the chances are that the hand will run on until the stock pile is exhausted. By that time your opponents will score about a thousand or fifteen hundred points.

The lesson is clear: Don't pick up the discard pile unless you can see very good reason to expect a profit of at least a thousand points. Don't let yourself be lured on by a mere mixed canasta.

Even two mixed canastas are no bargain, unless there is a good reason to expect other canastas to develop later on. Likewise, one natural canasta is not enough unless there are good prospects of other canastas.

In most games of Cut-Throat Canasta that I have seen, the winner is the player with the greatest self-control. Mind you, that player doesn't always have the most fun—but we're just talking about winning.

Q—I understand that game is 7500 points in Cut-Throat Canasta, not the usual 5000 points. Do you ever need more than 120 points for your initial meld?

A—No. From 3000 to 7500 the initial meld is only 120 points.

Q—Are you required to ask permission before you can meld out in Cut-Throat Canasta?

A—If you are one of the two partners, you must ask permission at least once during the hand before you can meld out. If permission is denied, you need not ask again. If you are the lone wolf, of course, you need not ask permission to meld out. You are responsible only to yourself.

Q—Do the scores run higher in Cut-Throat than in regular Canasta?

A—Yes. They run about twice as high. People who like to play for something usually cut that something in half when they play Cut-Throat Canasta.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Ever Break an Arm?

By FRANK TRIPP

There was the proverbial moron who didn't know enough to come in out of the rain, and there was Hornsby's hound that swam the river to get a drink. I now present an incredible incident of insensibility, which by comparison makes the moron and the hound paragons of wisdom.

It is the tale of a sap who went around with a broken arm for a week—and didn't know it. There's no hearsay about it, for it was my arm and I'm the sap.

The event wouldn't be newsworthy except that it will clinch your long time suspicion that this chronicler has a screw loose somewhere. Then too, I've discovered some worthwhile advantages in a broken arm and feel obligated to report them to any who are planning fractured limbs in the near future.

First off, make it the left arm, and between the wrist and the elbow. There are two bones there, one spot where nature provided a spare. Make it the big bone, to which the thumb is attached somehow.

YOU CAN SPARE the thumb better than four fingers, I've discovered. Or maybe you aren't mixing yours by the four finger system any more.

Either way, you still have another four fingers on your right hand, whether or not there's that much left in the bottle. You also have another thumb to thumb a ride; or to indicate your hatred for disagreeable persons—in case you still employ that childish method.

If not, you'll need to invent something equivalent, because you will be exposed to endless questioning, advice, and recitals of fracture experiences, from bores to whom you'll want to signal disdain without putting yourself on record orally.

To increase dismay and conversation you diagnose your own case and go about for the first week declaring that you have a sprained wrist. Since it must not be allowed to stiffen by disuse, you massage it, swing it, stretch it, twist it, soak it with horse liniment; and, if acrobatically inclined, do a few handstands and cart wheels.

AT THE END of a week, if a mite suspicious of your diagnosis, you sneak to a doctor. He takes one look at your wrist, sees the bruised blood vessels up and down your forearm, and phones the X-ray room.

He asks, "When did this happen?" You say, "A week ago yesterday." Then, if he knows you well enough he says, "You damned fool!" If not, he just thinks it.

You have a hard time convincing the doc and the X-ray man that you've been open for business as usual all week, driven a car 250 miles and attended a clambake. They find a clean break of the big bone an inch above the wrist. In spite of the abuse and your acrobatics, the bones have found their place perfectly and began to knit.

THE DOC is so disgusted with all the study he put on fractures that he just says, "You must be an ox;" meaning, of course, that you should have saved his time and seen a veterinarian.

He makes you a sling, so you won't be chinning yourself in a doorway for a couple of weeks, and turns you loose—no cast, no bandages, no nothing. You get the impression that he's thinking "let the beast lick his own wounds."

Your household soon becomes sorry that you went to a doctor. Before you knew of the fracture you pompously declined all offers of assistance. But now you can't put on your socks, tie your tie or cut your meat. You sing high praise for the zipper. You sit around all day, waited on hand and foot.

THE EXPERIENCE is quite blissful; well worth the pain and inconvenience. Nobody asks you to do something every ten minutes. You can read by the hour without interruption. You are not drafted as the fourth hand in a screwy bridge game, asked to bring wood for the fireplace, not even raise the shades or close a window.

There's only one catch to the act. You have to be very careful that you don't get caught in the secrecy of your bedchamber pulling a cork out of a bottle or sorting your fishing tackle. Keep remembering that it's broken, not sprained—and wince every now and then. Don't get caught being ambidextrous.

Because you might want to get away with it again some time.

Navy Exam Set For December 13

The seventh nation-wide competitive examination for the U. S. Navy College Training Program will be held Dec. 13, it was announced today by James E. Tobin, guidance director of Kingston High School and local U. S. Navy civilian representative.

Tobin said that applications for the examination, which is open to all high school seniors or graduates between the ages of 17 and 21, must be filed prior to midnight, Nov. 22. He will provide specific information about the program, including time and place of the examination, method of applying, age and scholastic qualifications, upon request.

Those who are successful in passing the aptitude test will be interviewed and given physical examinations; then, if they are found in all respects qualified, their names will be submitted to state and territorial selection committees composed of prominent citizens and naval officers. The navy expects to enter about 2,000 students into the program commencing with the fall term of college, 1953.

The students selected by these competitive examinations will be assigned to the 52 Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps units which are located in various universities and colleges in the United States. If accepted by the college, they will be appointed Midshipmen, USNR, and will have their tuition, books and normal fees paid for by the government. In addition they will receive pay at the rate of $50 a month for the four-year period. Upon graduation they may be commissioned as officers in the Regular Army or Marine Corps and required to serve on active duty for three years. At the end of their second year of active duty they may apply for retention in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps, or when active duty requirements have been fulfilled they may transfer to the Reserve and, depending upon the needs of the service, return to civilian life.

Marines to Hold Three OCS Classes

The Marine Corps will conduct three Officer Candidate classes for college men this fiscal year it was announced today by T.Sgt. Awkerman, noncommissioned officer in charge of the Marine Recruiting Station in Kingston.

Two of the Officer Candidate classes, for seniors and college grads, will be conducted at Quantico, Va., in March and July, 1953. Members of these classes will attend a ten-week course of instruction as enlisted men. On successful completion of the course, they are commissioned as second lieutenants and retained on active duty for two years.

Freshmen, sophomores and juniors are eligible for the Platoon Leaders Class which will be conducted in June and July, 1953. Members of the PLC will attend two summer training periods, each of six weeks duration. No other military training is required. Upon successful completion of the two summers of training, and graduation from college, the men are commissioned as second lieutenants and sent to active duty for a period of two years.

Newly commissioned second lieutenants from either program then receive five months specialized officer training which is credited toward the required two years of active duty.

Sergeant Awkerman indicated that qualified college men in both senior and undergraduate categories are being accepted now. Seniors will not be called for training until they graduate. Accepted undergraduates will not be called for training until the summer of 1953. All undergraduates of the Platoon Leaders Class will be deferred from Selective Service according to the sergeant.

College women are eligible for identical programs.

Detailed information may be obtained by calling at the Kingston Marine Corps Recruiting Office located in the Post Office Building.

oranges. The men cared for their wounds as best they could. The private gave a lieutenant in the bunker a blood transfusion from a bottle.

During that first night, the private said, "the Reds came up to the bunker every five or ten minutes. Each time one of them popped his head in the door we let him have it with our carbines. After that we kept quiet but were constantly being hit by either our own or the Chinese artillery and mortars and tanks. One shell came through the aperture (in the bunker), but luckily the air strikes missed us."

"All of us were bloody and I think that's what saved us. We were afraid to fire because we might let them know we were alive. So we just go as low as we could behind the other bodies and sweated it out. We dozed once in awhile, but we couldn't sleep. No one lost his head. All of us were cool because we just knew the second div. would retake Baldy."

Cooling Rate

After death the body cools at an average rate of about 1.5 degrees an hour, says the American Medical Association.

area, he said. Its function is to act as the agency of the state to institute federal assistance in flooded areas, to assist federal agencies in flood areas, and it is the recipient of complaints relative to new flood areas in the state, he explained.

The commission at present is involved in 60 projects costing over $142,000, Evans stated. The legislation that created state flood control provides that no state funds may be spent in flood control work except in conjunction with federal funds, the speaker said.

Evans reported that flood control works have been completed at Mt. Pleasant with a federal grant of $50,000 and a state grant of $17,000. No improvements can be undertaken on the lower Esopus until the U. S. Army Engineers are empowered to act, he reported.

Evans was introduced by Attorney Fred Stang.

In answer to a question as to why local areas have been flooded for the first time in 50 years, Evans noted that the area is in a cycle of heavy precipitation, as is evidenced by the level of Lake Ontario, which is at the highest stage in 100 years.

The following resolution was adopted at the meeting: "That we, the Ulster County Flood Control Committee, duly assembled, due hereby and herein urge and request that the executive director of the N. Y. State Flood Control Commission be cognizant of the fact that the lower Esopus Creek basin has been subjected to extreme flood conditions over the past three years, causing destruction of property and anxiety as to future floods in this area. In view of this, the executive secretary of the N. Y. State Flood Control Commission is hereby asked to use his good offices and influences wtih the proper officials of the City of New York and the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in obtaining their cooperation to alleviate this condition."

away all clouds in the nation's coal industry.

The Southern Coal Producers Association, not involved in the agreement, has called a meeting of its directors for Wednesday in Washington.

Joseph E. Moody, chief negotiator for the southern group, said he considers the new UMW-northern operators' pact "awful rough." He added:

"I haven't any idea what my people will do."

The UMW contract with the southern operators expires Oct. 1.

The eastern Pennsylvania anthracite (hard coal) pact expires Sept. 30, but there is little likelihood of trouble in that field. The operators have already reached a tentative agreement with Lewis, calling for them to accept contract terms agreed on in the remainder of the industry.

Seymour Is Charged

Edward Seymour, 57, of 130 Wrentham street, was arrested Saturday on a malicious mischief charge. The information charges that he "by-passed" an electric meter by a wiring arrangement. He was arrested on a warrant executed by County Investigator Arthur Brown and Deputy Sheriff Chester Wolven and turned over to the local police. The case was put over for a week to allow the defendant time to obtain counsel when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today.

Jacoby on Canasta

Self-Control Is Canasta Aid

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

I have received a number of questions about Cut-Throat Canasta, the three-handed game in which the player who first takes the discard pile becomes a lone wolf against the other two as partners. Many of the letters ask me to give them the secret of winning at the new game.

That's easy, but advice is not enough. The secret of winning at Cut-Throat Canasta is to resist temptation. This seems to be good advice in many other fields also; but people somehow still manage to fall.

In Cut-Throat Canasta you tend to reach for the discard pile too soon. Unless you can meld out immediately, the chances are that the hand will run on until the stock pile is exhausted. By that time your opponents will score about a thousand or fifteen hundred points.

The lesson is clear: Don't pick up the discard pile unless you can see very good reason to expect a profit of at least a thousand points. Don't let yourself be lured on by a mere mixed canasta.

Even two mixed canastas are no bargain, unless there is a good reason to expect other canastas to develop later on. Likewise, one natural canasta is not enough unless there are good prospects of other canastas.

In most games of Cut-Throat Canasta that I have seen, the winner is the player with the greatest self-control. Mind you, that player doesn't always have the most fun—but we're just talking about winning.

Q—I understand that game is 7500 points in Cut-Throat Canasta, not the usual 5000 points. Do you ever need more than 120 points for your initial meld?

A—No. From 3000 to 7500 the initial meld is only 120 points.

Q—Are you required to ask permission before you can meld out in Cut-Throat Canasta?

A—If you are one of the two partners, you must ask permission at least once during the hand before you can meld out. If permission is denied, you need not ask again. If you are the lone wolf, of course, you need not ask permission to meld out. You are responsible only to yourself.

Q—Do the scores run higher in Cut-Throat than in regular Canasta?

A—Yes. They run about twice as high. People who like to play for something usually cut that something in half when they play Cut-Throat Canasta.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Nixon Will Go on Radio-TV

take over the California's speaking schedule until he gets back on his campaign itinerary.

Nixon said he will resume the tour probably in Montana where he was scheduled to speak next Wednesday.

Nixon earlier had given out word that he would issue a complete statement today on his entire financial history. But Press Secretary James Bassett said this unusual accounting would be incorporated in the radio-television speech, possibly with a supplementary detailed report.

When this latter statement will be issued has not been determined. A report on expenditures from the $18,000 fund already has been given by Dana F. Smith of Pasadena, Calilf., a trustee of the fund, at Nixon's instigation, along with a list of the contributors.

Nixon's post-midnight announcement came just six hours before his special train was to have left for Seattle, with speech making whistle stops along the way.

The California senator looked calm and more relaxed than he has in the hectic few days since the story of political expenses broke and slowly developed into a major campaign issue.

Nixon has received a generally favorable reaction in speeches since then defending the donations by friends who backed his 1950 senatorial campaign.

There was some heckling in several places on the money issue, but this was outweighed by the heavy applause for his stand. His theme:

The fund was never a secret. It was used to pay extra expenses of his Senate office — such as travel for political speeches, mailing and clerical help. He felt these were costs which should not be charged to the government.

In a Portland speech which drew a standing ovation Saturday night, the vice presidential nominee said it was a lie that he took the money for his personal use and he denied that it was illegal and unethical as charged.

"If that were true, let me say first of all that I should never have accepted the nomination for the vice presidency of the United States; and if it were true I would get off the ticket right away. But it is not true and I think you should know the facts

"You will find that not one cent of the $18,000 or anything else from a constituent went into my personal pocket. It never has and it never will in the future."

General Has Talk

Hagerty said, whether Eisenhower had made any decision on the vital political matter.

Will Give Out Decision

"When there is a decision, I will let you know—when there are any developments, I will let you know," Hagerty told reporters at an informal post-midnight conference on this campaign train.

The press secretary said that neither Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio nor Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York had been consulted directly by Eisenhower before the Republican nominee talked to Nixon. Taft is expected to be on the platform when Eisenhower delivers a major address on foreign policy in Cincinnati tonight.

The complete statement of Nixon's financial operations was reported to be regarded by some of Eisenhower's associates as a necessary answer to the California senator's admission that $18,235 in expense funds had been spent in his behalf.

As the situation was being interpreted, some of Eisenhower's associates and the general himself apparently, largely were satisfied with the accounting of the Nixon fund furnished by Dana Smith, Pasadena, Calif., attorney and chief money raiser.

Will Be Certain

But, having been politically burned by the original disclosures, some of the general's advisers apparently wanted to be certain that no new valid charges would arise regarding Nixon's activities.

Early yesterday Hagerty had told a news conference that the question of retaining Nixon on the ticket "obviously is too important for a quick decision."

At that time, Hagerty said 400 telegrams had been received by Eisenhower on the Nixon incident, adding that they were about equally divided between those urging the California senator be booted off the ticket and those contending that he should remain and be backed strongly by the general.

Hagerty later told reporters additional telegrams swung the balance to Nixon's side. These telegrams were reported coming largely from Republican party organization members who were urging that Nixon be kept on the ticket.

In addition those advocating Nixon's retention took heart from an editorial prepared for all of the Heart newspapers. It said the whole attack on Nixon was "obvious nonsense and we can only hope that Ike and his advisers will reject it utterly and promptly."

Some other newspapers called last week for Nixon's resignation as the vice presidential nominee while still others adopted a "wait and see" policy.

The furor over Nixon's expense fund overshadowed the wayside stopping the Republican nominee planned to do on today's whistle-stop schedule. Swinging through a section of Illinois and Indiana Eisenhower planned to make an off-the-train speech at Louisville, Ky., before his arrival in Cincinnati for the foreign policy talk tonight.

Will Form Group Backing GOP Slate

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP)—Organization of a national professional committee for Eisenhower and Nixon, to attract physicians, dentists, lawyers, engineers and other professional persons, was announced today.

Chairman of the committee is Dr. Elmer L. Henderson of Louisville, Ky., a past president of the American Medical Association. Dr. Henderson earlier today resigned as leader of the AMA four-year campaign against compulsory health insurance.

Two other AMA past presidents will join Dr. Henderson in what he described as a bipartisan drive for the election of Eisenhower and Nixon. They are Dr. Ernest E. Irons of Chicago and Dr. John W. Cline of San Francisco. They are vice chairmen.

The committee announced it is writing a direct appeal to 350,000 physicians, dentists, pharmacists and allied professional personnel, asking active assistance in reaching the voters of their communities.

"The campaign will bridge party lines," Dr. Henderson said, "as the men and women of the professions, whether they are Republicans, Democrats or independents, recognize there is a critical need to put an end to socialism, corruption and un-American abuses in our American government."

Dr. Henderson described himself as a lifelong Democrat who is "sincerely convinced that Gen. Eisenhower and Sen. Nixon, both God-fearing men of humility and deep integrity, will reaffirm and revitalize the great moral principles upon which America was founded, and will restore to our government the sense of responsibility, and the plain honesty it so sorely needs."

Stevenson Says

so denounced Republican charges accusing him of labor "captivity" or "turning left."

"Why is it," he asked "that when political ammunition runs low the rusty artillery of abuse is always wheeled into action?"

Referring to Eisenhower's speech, he said, "I am grateful that it was a Republican, Senator (Wayne) Morse, who revealed so masterfully how all of those explosions we heard were only blank cartridges." Morse addressed the convention last week.

The Democratic candidate said that "only on one point" had Eisenhower in his labor speech even approached "a joining of the issues."

Singer Reports Prowler Leaped From Roof

William Singer, a Kingston police commissioner, reported to state police at Highland that when he arrived at his home in Ulster Park about 4 p. m. Sunday a man leaped from the porch roof and ran into the woods.

Commissioner Singer told troopers he gave chase but the man managed to elude him in the wooded area. The prowler was reported to be a Negro, but was otherwise unidentified.

Troopers said an investigation by Singer disclosed that the man apparently had entered the house by breaking a window on the second story. As far as could be immediately determined, Singer told troopers, nothing was missing except a miniature police commissioner's badge.

R. H. Hartley Dies

Seattle, Sept. 22 (AP)—Roland Hill Hartley, who turned to politics after amassing a fortune as a timberman and was twice elected governor of Washington state, died here yesterday. He was 88. Hartley, a Republican, became governor in 1925 and served two stormy terms as the state's chief executive. He dropped out of public life after he was defeated in his third bid for the office in 1936 and had lived in virtual retirement at his home in Everett, Wash.

Jacque Seeks Divorce

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 22 (AP)—Jacque Mercer, Miss America of 1949, has filed suit for divorce from William Oldenburger III of Mexico City. The couple announced their Aug. 22 marriage only 11 days ago. Four months ago Jacque was divorced from her first husband, Douglas Cook. In the latest action she charged "cruel and inhuman treatment and extreme cruelty." She asked payment of court costs and attorneys' fees.

Nixon Will Go on Radio-TV

take over the California's speaking schedule until he gets back on his campaign itinerary.

Nixon said he will resume the tour probably in Montana where he was scheduled to speak next Wednesday.

Nixon earlier had given out word that he would issue a complete statement today on his entire financial history. But Press Secretary James Bassett said this unusual accounting would be incorporated in the radio-television speech, possibly with a supplementary detailed report.

When this latter statement will be issued has not been determined. A report on expenditures from the $18,000 fund already has been given by Dana F. Smith of Pasadena, Calilf., a trustee of the fund, at Nixon's instigation, along with a list of the contributors.

Nixon's post-midnight announcement came just six hours before his special train was to have left for Seattle, with speech making whistle stops along the way.

The California senator looked calm and more relaxed than he has in the hectic few days since the story of political expenses broke and slowly developed into a major campaign issue.

Nixon has received a generally favorable reaction in speeches since then defending the donations by friends who backed his 1950 senatorial campaign.

There was some heckling in several places on the money issue, but this was outweighed by the heavy applause for his stand. His theme:

The fund was never a secret. It was used to pay extra expenses of his Senate office — such as travel for political speeches, mailing and clerical help. He felt these were costs which should not be charged to the government.

In a Portland speech which drew a standing ovation Saturday night, the vice presidential nominee said it was a lie that he took the money for his personal use and he denied that it was illegal and unethical as charged.

"If that were true, let me say first of all that I should never have accepted the nomination for the vice presidency of the United States; and if it were true I would get off the ticket right away. But it is not true and I think you should know the facts

"You will find that not one cent of the $18,000 or anything else from a constituent went into my personal pocket. It never has and it never will in the future."

General Has Talk

Hagerty said, whether Eisenhower had made any decision on the vital political matter.

Will Give Out Decision

"When there is a decision, I will let you know—when there are any developments, I will let you know," Hagerty told reporters at an informal post-midnight conference on this campaign train.

The press secretary said that neither Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio nor Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York had been consulted directly by Eisenhower before the Republican nominee talked to Nixon. Taft is expected to be on the platform when Eisenhower delivers a major address on foreign policy in Cincinnati tonight.

The complete statement of Nixon's financial operations was reported to be regarded by some of Eisenhower's associates as a necessary answer to the California senator's admission that $18,235 in expense funds had been spent in his behalf.

As the situation was being interpreted, some of Eisenhower's associates and the general himself apparently, largely were satisfied with the accounting of the Nixon fund furnished by Dana Smith, Pasadena, Calif., attorney and chief money raiser.

Will Be Certain

But, having been politically burned by the original disclosures, some of the general's advisers apparently wanted to be certain that no new valid charges would arise regarding Nixon's activities.

Early yesterday Hagerty had told a news conference that the question of retaining Nixon on the ticket "obviously is too important for a quick decision."

At that time, Hagerty said 400 telegrams had been received by Eisenhower on the Nixon incident, adding that they were about equally divided between those urging the California senator be booted off the ticket and those contending that he should remain and be backed strongly by the general.

Hagerty later told reporters additional telegrams swung the balance to Nixon's side. These telegrams were reported coming largely from Republican party organization members who were urging that Nixon be kept on the ticket.

In addition those advocating Nixon's retention took heart from an editorial prepared for all of the Heart newspapers. It said the whole attack on Nixon was "obvious nonsense and we can only hope that Ike and his advisers will reject it utterly and promptly."

Some other newspapers called last week for Nixon's resignation as the vice presidential nominee while still others adopted a "wait and see" policy.

The furor over Nixon's expense fund overshadowed the wayside stopping the Republican nominee planned to do on today's whistle-stop schedule. Swinging through a section of Illinois and Indiana Eisenhower planned to make an off-the-train speech at Louisville, Ky., before his arrival in Cincinnati for the foreign policy talk tonight.

Both tanning and burning of the skin are caused by the sun's ultraviolet rays which consist of waves too short to be visible.

Will Form Group Backing GOP Slate

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP)—Organization of a national professional committee for Eisenhower and Nixon, to attract physicians, dentists, lawyers, engineers and other professional persons, was announced today.

Chairman of the committee is Dr. Elmer L. Henderson of Louisville, Ky., a past president of the American Medical Association. Dr. Henderson earlier today resigned as leader of the AMA four-year campaign against compulsory health insurance.

Two other AMA past presidents will join Dr. Henderson in what he described as a bipartisan drive for the election of Eisenhower and Nixon. They are Dr. Ernest E. Irons of Chicago and Dr. John W. Cline of San Francisco. They are vice chairmen.

The committee announced it is writing a direct appeal to 350,000 physicians, dentists, pharmacists and allied professional personnel, asking active assistance in reaching the voters of their communities.

"The campaign will bridge party lines," Dr. Henderson said, "as the men and women of the professions, whether they are Republicans, Democrats or independents, recognize there is a critical need to put an end to socialism, corruption and un-American abuses in our American government."

Dr. Henderson described himself as a lifelong Democrat who is "sincerely convinced that Gen. Eisenhower and Sen. Nixon, both God-fearing men of humility and deep integrity, will reaffirm and revitalize the great moral principles upon which America was founded, and will restore to our government the sense of responsibility, and the plain honesty it so sorely needs."
